WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. military forces sped toward the area of South Viet Nam as a precautionary move today while top advisers huddled with President Kennedy on strategy in relation to what officials called an uprising of "real proportions."

By ROBERT EUNSON
TOKYO (AP)—A military revolt erupted in Saigon today against President Ngo Dinh Diem and there was an unconfirmed report that he has been ousted.
A high U.S. military source in Tokyo said he had heard—but could not evaluate—a story that Diem was deposed and his adviser-brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, killed by dissident South Vietnamese.

Heavy fighting was reported around Diem's yellow stucco palace. Marines in battle dress surrounded the national police headquarters in Saigon and took over outlying police stations, apparently without resistance.

The fighting erupted at Saigon's luncheon and siesta hour. A half dozen high-flying planes drew fire from anti-aircraft batteries near navy headquarters and from troops in the streets, but there was no confirmation that any were hit. There was scattered firing throughout the city.

In Washington, President Kennedy summoned his top military and diplomatic advisers to the White House to assess the situation.

U.S. officials in Washington called it a coup of "real proportions" that appeared to be moving fairly far, though there still was no way of knowing whether it would be successful.
A qualified source said top military figures, though not necessarily all of them, headed the rebel movement.

Most communications from Saigon to the outside world were cut off.
U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, representing a war ally of South Viet Nam critical of Diem's strong-arm actions against Buddhist and student opposition leaders, saw Diem shortly before the shooting started.

Lodge originally had planned to leave Saigon Thursday for consultations in Washington. He disclosed Wednesday he was (Turn to Page 6, Column 5)

42 Die, 385 Hurt in Indianapolis Blast

SEARCHING FOR RELATIVE—Police officers help man search for relative among victims lying on ice following blast Thursday night at Indiana State Fairgrounds Coliseum, in Indianapolis. (AP Wirephoto)

By DALE BURGESS
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An explosion ripped through a crowd watching an ice revue Thursday night, killing at least 42 and injuring more than 385.
The Holiday on Ice Revue had only three minutes to go when the blast, apparently caused by gas, shot a tongue of fire through a section of the Indiana State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Stunned Indianapolis officials, many of them among the 4,100 spectators, reported a growing death toll of 42 and 385 persons gravely injured.
"We don't know what happened," said State Fire Marshal Ira Anderson.
City and state fire officials agreed the explosion evidently was from gas of an undetermined type.
The blast lifted a section of 128 box seats, best in the house, and dumped them on a stretch of 240 bleacher seats just below.

Bodies were thrown high in the air and fell on the ice amid the skating chorus.
The stars of the show—Holiday on Ice—were waiting in the wings to skate out for the finale. It was a glittering production, representing the Mardi Gras, and the band was playing Dixieland jazz.

The band kept playing in the best tradition of show business, and the skaters hurried off the ice to make way for rescue teams. There was no panic as the shocked survivors filed out.
With hundreds of injured pinned under shattered seats and jagged chunks of concrete, the obvious dead were left lying in pools of blood on the ice. Hor-ribly injured persons lay unattended for what seemed an interminable time as the first few doctors and nurses on the scene did the best they could.

Every ambulance in Indianapolis and nearby cities was called, and the injured were taken to six hospitals in the area, including the Army hospital at Ft. Benjamin Harrison.
Finally the hundreds of fire-

Seven Killed In Georgia Explosion

By ROBERT DAVENPORT
MARIETTA, Ga. (AP)—A mysterious explosion ripped through a downtown Halloween celebration Thursday night, killing seven persons and injuring at least 25 others.
Fire Chief Howard Shaefer said the cause of the explosion had not been determined. Unconfirmed reports indicated the explosion may have been caused by leaking gas.
Firemen and civil defense workers worked through the night to clear debris in a search for other possible victims. The front portion of the two-story, concrete structure threatened to collapse, hampering rescue operations.
Hundreds of children and adults had come to the town square in this northwest Georgia town for a Halloween parade and window-decorating contest. Marietta, with a population of near 40,000, is 13 miles northwest of Atlanta.
The explosion occurred about 6:30 p.m. shortly after the festivities had come to an end.
Among the dead were Joe Ben Carter, 33, and his son, Terry, 7. They had entered the store to buy Terry a Halloween mask. Mrs. Carter and two other children, Danny, 10, and Bobby, 5, were outside the store and suffered cuts from flying glass.
The other victims included Mrs. Ralph Fowler, mother of Bob Fowler, executive editor of the Marietta Journal; Mrs. Betty Joe Carlisle, 24, a store cashier; S. A. White, an oil distributor; Mrs. Ofelia Scott and Mrs. Marie Barfield.
All the dead were found inside the building. Twenty-five persons were admitted to a hospital with injuries. Most were treated and later released, but eight were listed in serious condition.
The corner drug store was demolished and windows were broken in stores next door and across the street.

Alexander Film Announces Changes in Ownership

Keith Munroe, this week, announced the purchase of the 45-year-old Alexander Film Co., one of the Pikes Peak Region's largest and best known organizations.
Ownership of the studio that covers 26 acres at the north end of Colorado Springs, is now shared by Cortlandt S. Dietler, Denver; F. M. Late, San Angelo, Tex.; J. A. Oleson, Sterling, and Keith Munroe of Colorado Springs.
The amount involved in the transaction was not divulged.
At the same time, Munroe, the film firm's president, announced the election of three new directors. Also named were certain new officers, and Munroe announced the formation of a wholly-owned Canadian subsidiary to be known as Alexander Film of Canada, Ltd.
Elected directors were Cortlandt S. Dietler, F. M. Late and J. A. Oleson. The new officers are Cortlandt S. Dietler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer; J. A. Oleson, executive vice president; F. M. Late, vice president and F. W. Marting, vice president and controller.
With the exception of Munroe, the buyers are all new in the film business.
Born in Denver, Dietler has spent all of his business years in the petroleum industry.
Oleson, a native of Gypsum, is active in the oil business and in ranching.
Partners for over 10 years, Dietler and Oleson were instrumental in helping Vail emerge as one of the nation's leading ski areas.

Some U.S. Troops In Japan May Be Sent Home

By CONRAD FINK
TOKYO (AP) — The United States is considering withdrawal of some military personnel from Japan as part of the Kennedy administration's drive to reduce dollar spending abroad.
An informed U.S. source said talks are being held with Japanese defense officials on ways to reduce American military costs and also to streamline units to fit Washington's plans for a strategy based on mobile strike forces.
However, the issue has become entangled in Japan's impending general election, and the source said no quick decision is expected on whether the number of U.S. servicemen in Japan—now about 46,000—will be reduced drastically.
Prime Minister Hayato Ikenaka's Liberal-Democratic party, hoping to head off Socialist campaign sources of subversion to the United States, is quietly spreading word that a (Turn to Page 6, Column 2)

Three Men, Trapped More Than Week in Mine, Saved

BROISTEDT, Germany (AP) — Three men trapped for more than a week in a flooded iron mine were brought to the surface today.
The miners — Gerhard Hanusch, 43; Emil Pohla, 34, and Fritz Leder, 36 — were hauled up in a bomb-shaped rescue capsule, from a gallery 259 feet underground.
A mine foreman, Paul Syska, went down the rescue shaft with the capsule, helped the trio into the little compartment and followed them back up.
The rescue was accomplished through a shaft drilled after contact was made with the men Sunday. The shaft broke through into the gallery early today.

Newcomer Case Creditor Hearing Is Postponed

A U.S. District Court hearing on a petition by the Creditors' Committee, Joe Newcomer Finance Company, scheduled for this morning in Denver, has been postponed.
Mrs. Lena Meier, committee chairman, said attorney Lee W. Rector will attempt to reset the hearing on Monday before Judge William Doyle.
The committee has petitioned the court to rule that Fred Betz Sr., trustee for the defunct Joe Newcomer Finance Company, pay off an approximate $36,400 note on Columbine Estates north of here.

New Maneuverable Space Ship Orbiting by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today it has launched a space ship into orbit which can maneuver in all directions, changing its orbit both sideways and in height.
The announcement said the apparatus is called "Polyot One." Polyot means flight.
The ship apparently is unmanned, but contains a mass of control mechanisms which permit it to maneuver in such a manner that, if desired, it could be moved alongside another craft in space.
Such a project has been planned not only by the Soviet Union but by the United States.
The announcement, given over Moscow Radio, said the ship can "maneuver in all directions."
At one stage it flew with a maximum height of 592 kilometers (368 miles) and a minimum altitude of 343 kilometers (211 miles).
On several occasions during its flight it was called on to transmit data to listening stations in the Soviet Union. Its performance was described as normal.

Ice Show Halted Suddenly By Indianapolis Explosion

By JERRY EDGERTON and JAMES R. POLK
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The bodies sprawled grotesquely all over the ice, the victims' colorful, open-night clothing contrasting starkly with the frozen white surface.
Crimson pools pock-marked the ice, where the explosion's grim debris lay.
Moments before, 36 skaters had glided across the ice to the Dixieland jazz of the finale to the Holiday on Ice show. The Halloween night opening had brought many of Indianapolis' fashionable to the State Fairgrounds Coliseum.
Then they were dead. So many.
An explosion, apparently from a gas leak, catapulted spectators into the air, some with their chairs. Huge slabs of concrete rose straight up under the seats and smashed down on the bleacher occupants.
A horrified spectator told of people "flying through the air like cannonballs" as the blast reverberated on the concrete tiers of the arena.
A fireman who arrived amid

Numbering Law Violated by Most Boatmen

By JACK WOLISTON

United Press International
U.S. Coast Guard boarding teams who have inspected thousands of pleasure craft this year report that one of the most frequent violations of legal requirements involves the numbering law.

These violations include failure ever to have applied for a number, improper display of number and failure to have aboard either a temporary or permanent certificate of number.

The Coast Guard points out the operator is subject to a $50 fine for each violation under the Federal Boating Act of 1958.

Anyone unfamiliar with boat numbering requirements, should keep these basic points in mind:

—Any boat propelled by machinery of more than 10 horsepower and operated on the "navigable waters of the United States" must be numbered regardless of length and type of motor. Excluded are boats used exclusively for racing and vessels documented by the Bureau of Customs.

—States are permitted to handle the numbering providing their system is compatible with the Federal system. In such a case, a state may require all motor-powered craft, regardless of horsepower, to be numbered. When the state system terminating factor as to where approved, application is made to the Coast Guard through a local post office.

—A place where a boat is normally kept becomes the determining factor as to where application is made.

—Upon application and payment of fee, the post office issues a temporary certificate of number which permits operation of the boat without bow number until a certificate is received. A certificate is valid for three years when a renewal application must be made.

—The number assigned must be painted on or attached to both bows of the boat. Numbers must read from left to right, be of block character, of contrasting color to the background, and not less than three inches in height. Don't run letters and numbers together.

—The temporary, and later the permanent, certificate of numbers must be carried aboard at all times.

—The owner of a Coast Guard-numbered boat who changes his address must notify the Coast Guard of his new address within 15 days.

—If a boat is lost, destroyed or abandoned, the certificate of number must be surrendered to the Coast Guard within 15 days.

Always remember that if a boat is numbered by a State whose system has been federally approved requirements may differ in many instances and the instructions of the State must be followed.

Anyone who ever has dreamed of getting away from it all and sailing off to distant foreign lands should follow in the wake of Mrs. Suttie Adams of San Jose, Calif., one of the few women ship captains in the world.

Two years and 10 months ago Mrs. Adams, with a crew of seven girls and two men and her four children, left San Francisco on a six-year trip around the world aboard the 60-foot schooner Fairweather.

According to latest word, the Fairweather now is in the Kenya port of Mombasa. So far during the voyage the schooner has visited the Galapagos Islands, Tahiti, New Zealand, Fiji, the New Hebrides, New Guinea, Australia, Singapore, The Seychelles and Zanzibar.

The current fund drive for the BFVFD has been extended to Dec. 31, in order to allow more time to raise the necessary funds for this year's budget. The Ladies Auxiliary will make the annual door-to-door survey, as only $2,245.45 of the $12,500.00 budget has been contributed so far. It was hoped that the amount needed could be raised without the survey being conducted this year.

Last Sunday was Layman's Sunday at the Black Forest Community Church. Rev. Natelli and family were away for the weekend. Dr. Albert P. Bridges spoke on, "Thoughts From a Layman," at the regular church service. Ed Morast assisted in conducting the program.

HUNTING and FISHING

By DICK MOORE

Kill figures from the Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Department's check stations around the state at the end of the first days of the big game season, indicate that the deer kill is down while the elk kill is up.

Seven thousand nine hundred and thirteen were checked thru the department's five check stations during the first three days as compared to 9,289 last year. This represents a drop of almost 15 per cent.

At the same time, elk checked thru the stations numbered 375 this year compared to 449 last year, an increase of over 28 per cent.

Eight bears, the same number as last year, were brought thru the stations during the first three days of this season.

One station showed a slight increase for deer this year over last year, while the others showed decreases. The increase was recorded at the Monarch Pass station while the biggest decrease, 64 per cent, was shown at the Del Norte station.

Elk figures were up 42 per cent at both the Idaho Springs and Monarch Pass stations while Rifle showed exactly the same number of elk this year as last.

State Game Manager Gilbert Hunter reported that he felt the lower deer figures this year were attributed to the fact that hunting is hard this year in most places and the hunter went into the field with this knowledge and was prepared to spend more time in getting his game.

"I think our figures will come up to expectations by the end of the second weekend," Hunter concluded, saying, "I am very pleased with the success that elk hunters seem to be having. Elk are the bellweather of our seasons and if hunters are having success in finding the elk, then we are reasonably sure that we will have a good over-all hunting season."

It was a new hunting season that opened on the western slope of Colorado Oct. 19, but causes of the early hunting accidents reported were the same old ones.

Failure to properly identify targets and improper handling of weapons accounted for almost all the fatality and non-fatal accidents that occurred during the first weekend of the season.

One person was shot for a bear at a distance of 35 feet in the early morning light of opening day. One died from complications following an operation for a gun shot wound incurred when the hunter tried to club a deer to death, the weapon discharging. Carrying a loaded weapon in the back seat of a car, and carrying loaded and cocked pistols in holsters while hunting accounted for most of the rest.

One injury was recorded when a hunter, dragging a deer out of the woods, fell on his knife. Hunters are reminded of some of the cardinal rules of hunter safety. The main one is to be sure of your target before firing. Look twice and a third time if necessary but don't shoot until you are sure what you are shooting at.

The other main rule is to keep all weapons unloaded when not actually in the field hunting. This is especially true of carrying weapons in a car. Make sure they are unloaded before placing them in a vehicle. This is one of the main causes of hunting accidents and the number of occurrences of this type of accident are rising each year.

The Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Commission, during a special meeting at Sterling, Oct. 24, voted unanimously to defer its proposed experimental hen pheasant season in portions of Sedgwick and Phillips counties.

The action to defer carried following promises of cooperation with the department from landowners of Sedgwick and Phillips counties in a program of pheasant habitat development in northeast Colorado.

The season had originally been set during the commission's August meeting at Denver, and following protests from landowners in the proposed area against shooting hen pheasants, had been upheld by a 5-4 vote of the commission during its October meeting at Walden.

During the meeting at Sterling, which had been called to reconsider all the aspects of the proposed season, the commission heard arguments from those opposing the season, discussed again the ramifications involved, and then voted to call off the special, experimental season.

The season had originally been set to give game biologists a chance to collect valuable data and information about the effects on the pheasant populations of shooting the hen of the species. Biologists believe that there would be no effect but to be sure had set up the special season under strict controls, so that a practical experiment could be held on which to base future judgments.

However, in view of the fact that landowners had promised to close their lands to all pheasant shooting, which would have made the gathering of information about hen pheasant shooting impossible, the commission voted to call off the season.

A new technique for marking elk has been tried by Ray Boyd, principal game biologist for the Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Department.

Boyd reports spraying three or four elk from a helicopter recently while flying the Rio Grande drainage. He used white paint and a spray gun and reports that there is one elk with a tremendous rack wandering about the Rio Grande National Forest with a full coat of white paint.

As far as is known, it is the first time this method has been tried on elk, although Wyoming has sprayed antelope from a fixed wing plane successfully.

Boyd is asking that hunters in the Rio Grande drainage keep an eye open for elk covered with white paint. If one is shot, the hunter is asked to notify the Game, Fish and Parks Department or one of the department fieldmen.

Boyd is requesting the information so that an evaluation can be made of this method of marking the game animals. If it is successful it could mean that the department could save considerable money in its research program into the movements and migration patterns of elk.

A banded turkey, taken during the first turkey season in the Mount Evans area has turned out to be one of the birds from the original plant there, according to Don Hoffman, principal game biologist for the Game, Fish and Parks Department.

According to Hoffman's records, the bird, taken this season by Tom Brasel of Evergreen, was one of the original nine birds planted there on Nov. 6, 1956.

There were five hens and four gobblers in the plant which had been trapped out of the Spanish Peaks area on the Sakariason Ranch in Sarcillo Canyon.

The bird, when shot earlier this month, was over seven years of age. Its history was traced from the wing band which Mr. Brasel sent into the department.

SUVA — "Never on Sunday" was banned recently by motion picture censors in Suva, but was shown at the adjacent Nadi Airport Stadium.

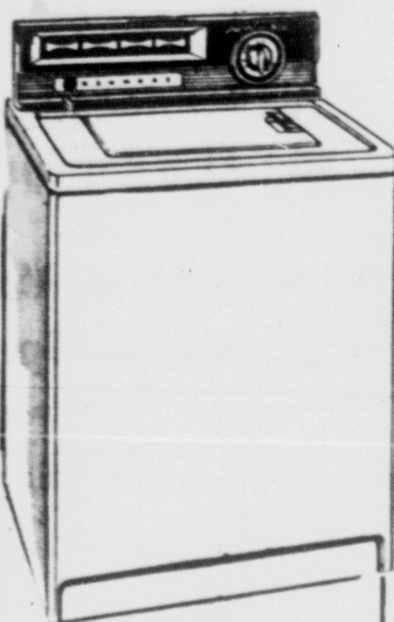

A BIRD? A PLANE?—Well, not exactly. It's the Wing Thing, a new ready-to-fly miniature flexwing, which catches the attention of two boys as it takes to the air at the National Model Airplane Championships at Los Alamitos, Calif. The model, powered by a tiny glow-plug engine, is similar to the flexible wing device which will be used by Project Gemini astronauts to land their capsule after their journey in space.

SPOIL YOUR HUSBAND

A young woman married a man 10 years her senior and is happy. She writes: "He is a hardworking man and I want to make a good home and a wonderful wife for him. So many of my married friends nag and are critical of their husbands, want to go out several nights a week, and make life miserable for all concerned."

This woman has the right idea and I hope her husband will reciprocate and return her love. Many wives are concerned with the modern pace of our business world. But, in my opinion, they should not suppress a man's drive or ambitions until they know definitely he is being harmed by tension. No one dies of hard work but overwork and over-fatigue can kill.

Everything possible should be done to decrease stress. All work and no play makes John a dull husband. He brings home the bacon and many citations but, all too often, love is overlooked.

Encourage him to set aside time for relaxation. There is nothing more enjoyable to a man than a calm home atmosphere. The first rule for the wife is never to be caught looking like a hag; spruce up a bit before he comes home — it takes only a few minutes. The next rule is to avoid anger, gloominess, and manifestations of frustration. These emotions sap a husband's strength, as he had enough of this during the working day.

Give him a chance to clean up, change his clothes, or do whatever he likes until he relaxes. The clever wife handles most of the problems about the house and spares her husband along this line. It gives him pleasure to know she is capable.

The third rule is not to nag, criticize, or point out his mistakes, especially at mealtime or before going to bed. And follow the same rule before he leaves in the morning. Many accidents and arguments on the job are traceable to arguments that took place before going to work.

Some of the most wonderful wives in the world even go so far as not to criticize the husband even when he acts like a fool. All this sounds one-sided but some women do not realize that a living husband is their best investment. The wife who insists upon having the last word gets it some day.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Cataracts Vary

A P. writes: I always thought only the elderly developed cataracts. Does this mean the condition is unusual in a person in the early fifties?

Reply
The senile variety is the most common but cataracts also follow injury and some children are born with congenital cataracts. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cataracts.

Blocked Tube
Mr. M. D. writes: Does a tubal pregnancy affect the other tube? I haven't conceived since I had this experience.

Reply
No. Tests can be made to determine whether the other tube is open.

Side Reaction
T. C. writes: Is it true that the drugs sold to lower the amount of cholesterol in the blood cause baldness?

Reply
This was an undesirable side effect in one product (MER29) among a few who used it over a long period.

Bitter Taste
M. M. B. writes: Do gallstones cause a dry, bitter taste in the mouth?

Reply
No, but the infected gall bladder may contribute to causing indigestion.

Emotions and Colitis

R. M. P. writes: My doctor tells me I have emotional colitis. I get diarrhea after my feelings are hurt or I become anxious or worried about anything. But what puzzles me is why the same thing happens when I have happy experiences. Can you explain?

Reply
Yes. Assuming that your happy experiences are associated with anticipation and excitement, these emotions also affect the nervous system.

Cauterizing Tonsils

B. G. writes: Can diseased tonsils in adults be removed in any way other than by surgery?

Reply
Some physicians use a cautery to remove small pieces of tonsil tissue at weekly intervals. This method is not as practicable and is more painful than going to the hospital and having the job done at one sitting.

CARBON TET INHALATION

E. S. writes: What symptoms occur from inhaling the vapor of carbon tet cleaning fluid?

Reply
Abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, and headache may occur, depending upon the amount inhaled. Alcoholics are more sensitive to this chemical and many develop these symptoms within a few minutes after inhaling the fumes.

LONG BATHS

C.E.S. writes: Are hot tub baths of an hour's duration relaxing or debilitating?

Reply
An hour in a hot tub can be both.

Phantom Bugler Strikes Again

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The phantom bugler, who knows the secret phone number for hooking into the Eastern Air Lines public address system, has struck again.

For months, the bugler has sporadically serenaded Miami employees with "Taps," apparently tooted on a toy trumpet. Last week, a hangar sprinkler system suddenly spouted. As crews began to mop up, the public address system clicked on and the familiar trumpet began:

"Row, row, row your boats, gently down the stream..."

62 Die, 385 Injured in Indianapolis Explosion

men, policemen and civil defense workers turned their attention to the dead and began laying them in rows along the side of the ice opposite the gaping hole in the south side of the arena.

Auto wreckers drove directly onto the ice to help tug at the chunks of concrete, some pieces as big as pianos.

Many of the bodies were charred by gouts of flame that roared 90 feet in the air, to the ceiling of the huge amphitheater, in the blast. The fire itself was quickly extinguished. There wasn't much inflammable material in the shattered section except the seats.

The force of the explosion was straight up or the tragedy could have brought a heavier toll. Most of the debris fell down, although some small pieces of concrete were found on the opposite side of the arena.

It appeared that the blast occurred under the seats in a commissary which supplied popcorn and soft drinks to vendors.

Wilbur Gauthier, 55, of Indianapolis, who worked in the commissary, said:

"I don't have any idea what happened. I was underneath the stands. It got dark all of a sudden, and then I was lying with concrete and timbers on me. I tried to get loose. I must have passed out then, because the next thing I knew a medical officer had me."

"There was a big boom," said Mayor Albert Losche, a spectator, "and bodies were flying through the air. Then they were lying there limp on the ice."

One woman probably expressed the feeling of many spectators.

"It's part of the show," she reduction is being negotiated. A U.S. Embassy spokesman would say only that comment on possible reductions would be "premature at this time."

President Kennedy at his news conference Thursday said about 1,000 men might be withdrawn from South Viet Nam.

That judgment on other units in the Far East will be "based on what the military correlation of forces may be."

Attention reportedly is concentrated on air units charged with helping defend Japan and providing air cover for about 50,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea.

The U.S. Air Force has about 26,000 men in Japan for this mission.

About 6,500 Marines are stationed in Japan. Their mission is to support the 3rd Marine Division stationed on Okinawa.

Withdrawal of some tactical units to Okinawa, 300 miles south of Japan, is deemed likely by some military experts.

The Navy has 7,800 men in Japan. Army strength is about 5,900 men, most of whom support the Korea-based 8th Army.

In addition to the effect on the U.S. balance of payments, many top American military men no longer consider Japan a stable base for U.S. operations.

Even though Japan's defense primarily is in U.S. hands, public opinion generally opposes the presence of American forces.

Local Mother Delivers Her Own Baby

Mrs. Donald Barr, of 719 W. Pikes Peak Ave., delivered her own baby, Mrs. Leon Mickey, her mother said today, at the Savoy Hotel, 24 S. Nevada Ave., at 5:40 p.m. Tuesday. The baby, a girl, named Lisa Gola, and weighing six pounds and eight ounces, and the mother are now at St. Francis Hospital, and both are doing well.

Mrs. Mickey is the proprietor of the Savoy Hotel and she said that she had her daughter, whose husband is employed at the First National Bank, come to the hotel Tuesday to be with her as Mrs. Barr was not feeling well. She said that a doctor and she both thought Mrs. Barr was ill of the flu and Mrs. Mickey had gone after flu medicine and then accompanied her husband to Denver, to which city he had to make a trip. Donald Barr, father of the baby, was with his wife at the hotel when the baby was unexpectedly born late Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Mickey said her daughter delivered her own baby.

NORAD Launches Continental Dial System

activated long distance dialing network to which American telephone subscribers are fast becoming accustomed. The Automatic Dial Switching Network (ADSN) is operated for NORAD by USAF's Air Defense Command and follows the basic operating procedures of the commercial "area code" system.

A forerunner of a world-wide automatic dial network, ADSN began operation with service to some 60 NORAD and ADC installations, Department of Defense agencies in Washington, D.C. and associated military commands on the North American continent. It will be expanded eventually to serve 100 military locations through 27 switching centers.

This communications network is designed to eliminate telephone operators, time lags in "hooking" calls, and other horse and buggy mechanics of telephone operation.

One of the special features of ADSN is the capability to automatically avoid potential trouble areas by diversifying call and circuit routing. This insures survivability of Communications in case of enemy attack on the North American Continent.

To place a call through the NORAD ADC Automatic Dial Switching Network, one has only to pick up the instrument and dial the proper "area code" and number.

The call is automatically routed over one of three possible routes to a given location. If the direct route has no vacant circuit, two alternate routes will be attempted before a "busy" signal is returned to the calling party.

If the call rates a priority, the switching center machine searches first for a vacant circuit in one of three possible trunk systems. If a vacant circuit is not found on its first look, it automatically repeats the procedure, cutting off the first non-priority call it meets. Thus the priority call is completed promptly.

If, in the event of war, 50 per cent of the circuits were knocked out, the system would still operate with a high degree of efficiency, bypassing affected areas. Also, at no time will the entire system be "busy." This system is so constructed that all 60 locations can make simultaneous calls and still have room for more.

Because of its flexibility, the Automatic Dial Switching Network will be more economical than the present manually operated point-to-point system.

A tractor and a trailer loaded with produce were stolen from the Young Produce Co. Thursday night, police reported.

Robert W. Young, the owner of the trailer, told police it was parked in the 100 block of South Cascade Avenue when it was taken. Value of the equipment was estimated at $3,300.

In another theft Thursday night, a car was stolen from Loren L. Swain, 12 E. Brookside St.

Swain told officers the car was parked in the 100 block of East Pikes Peak Avenue and was unlocked when the theft occurred.

Deputies said the 1958 model car was taken from a parking place outside the Navajo Hogan night club. A pickup is out for the car.

O'Rourke Sees Sugar Shortage Into Next Year

The present world sugar shortage and consequent world price strength will probably continue well into next year, it was reported today by Dennis O'Rourke, president of Holly Sugar Corp., in a quarterly letter to stockholders.

Pointing out that world sugar production continues to lag behind growing world demand, the head of the nation's second largest beet sugar company said that one effect has been a recent increase in raw sugar prices from a level of about $6.50 a hundred pounds in September to more than $10 as of Oct. 25.

However, he added, forward price commitments made before the new price increases, and extending into early 1964, would mean that most sugar marketed in "normal beet-marketing areas will move at prices somewhat below recent prices for raw cane sugar and materially below current quotations for refined cane sugar."

Influence of a general world sugar shortage began to be evidenced by higher prices late in 1962 and a peak price was reached in this country last May, it was stated. Prices thereafter declined, due in large part to government action designed to assure ample sugar supplies for U.S. consumers; and by September, 1963, price levels were only a little above a comparable period in 1962, but now have risen substantially again.

Hopes earlier this year that new sugar crops would be substantially greater than a world outturn in the previous year failed to materialize, O'Rourke stated. The European beet crop is now reported to be only slightly larger than the disappointingly small crops of the previous two years.

Cuban production, already cut almost in half under the Castro regime, was further reduced this year by Hurricane Flora.

O'Rourke also expressed the hope that governmental authorities would soon take action consistent with the national sugar Act to assure adequate 1964 supplies for the United States.

The Holly president said this year's sugar beet crop in areas served by the corporation's processing plants currently is expected to be from 12 to 15 per cent larger than a year ago. Tonnage, he indicated, is up, with some decline in sugar content.

He reported that construction of Holly's new plant at Hereford, Tex., is progressing on schedule with the target date for completion still being late summer of 1964.

Stockholders were advised by O'Rourke that, barring adverse developments, Holly Sugar Corp. could expect earnings this fiscal year ending next March 31 to be better than last.

The most recent dividend was 40 cents per share of common stock, payable Nov. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 30. The previous dividend had been 35 cents per share.

Concern that the so-called Bracero program, under which Mexican farm workers are made available to supplement inadequate domestic farm labor during certain seasons and for work in many crops, including sugar beets, was voiced by the president in the stockholders' letter.

Whether or not the program, provided for in Public Law 78, would be extended was before the Congress as the letter to stockholders was written, and action was expected soon.

It is generally agreed in the beet sugar industry, O'Rourke reported, that, if the Bracero program is not continued, production of a number of crops, including sugar beets, will probably decline until such time as an alternative to the use of Mexican workers can be developed.

"A decline in domestic sugar production such as would ensue from the lack of labor would be especially unfortunate at a time when world supplies are shorter than they have been for many years and when all other governmental actions have been aimed at increasing domestic production. Failure of the Congress to extend the Bracero program would indeed be contradictory," O'Rourke concluded.

Revolt Erupts Against Diem in South Viet Nam

postponing his departure until Saturday.

Accompanying the ambassador to the presidential palace for the talk with Diem was Adm. Harry D. Felt, commander of U.S. Pacific forces, who was returning from a meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization at Bangkok, Thailand.

Exactly how the U.S.-backed armed forces were split was not immediately apparent, but South Korea's embassy reported to Seoul that members of the 7th Marine Division and some army troops touched off the uprising. The Korean report said marines, in addition to occupying the national police headquarters, took over the government radio station, navy headquarters and the international telegraph office.

Diem's ambassador-designate in Washington, Do Van Ly, expressed deep concern at reports of the revolt. He said the fighting, coming on top of government reverses afield in the past few days, might give the Communist guerrillas opportunity to build themselves up again in South Viet Nam.

Ly's predecessor, former Ambassador Tran Van Choung, declared in Boston the reports "came as no surprise to me."

"I have known for a long time of the deep discontent of the whole population of Viet Nam," Choung said.

The former ambassador, a Confucianist, is the father of Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, Diem's sister-in-law and Viet Nam's First Lady. She now is in Los Angeles at the windup of a tour of the United States to explain the government's position in the political-religious crisis.

There was no immediate comment from her.

The outbreak in the South Vietnamese capital came after months of mounting tension stemming from bitter controversy between Diem's authoritarian regime and Buddhist leaders.

The Buddhists charged that the Roman Catholic president's brother and powerful chief adviser, Ngo Dinh Nhu, was persecuting them. Demonstrations against the government in which thousands of students joined in became almost daily occurrences during the summer.

Nhu's secret police and troops of the Vietnamese special forces on Aug. 21 raided the Buddhist pagodas that were the chief centers of opposition. Most of the Buddhist leaders along with hundreds of priests and students were arrested.

Diem's troubles with the Buddhists caused acute concern in the U.S. government, which has some 16,500 troops in the country training Vietnamese forces and helping in the war effort against the Communist Viet Cong.

The Kennedy administration brought pressure on Diem to get rid of Nhu and his outspoken wife, who acts as South Viet Nam's First Lady for the bachelor president. But Diem successfully resisted the American pressure.

During September government-controlled newspapers in Saigon charged several times that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was plotting a coup to topple Diem's government. CIA spokesmen in Washington denied the charges.

The Nation's Weather

(Report furnished by U.S. Weather Bureau Station at Denver Field)

Generally cloudy skies prevailed in the eastern, southern and extreme northwest sections of the country this morning while elsewhere mostly fair skies predominated.

The current weather pattern indicates a low pressure area is centered in the eastern Great Lakes Region with a cold front trailing southwestward to the western Gulf of Mexico.

A large, high pressure area located in the west central U.S. dominates the weather in the western half of the nation. Precipitation during the morning has been widespread in the northeast and extending southwestward across the plains.

The amounts are quite varied and scattered. Reports of one-fourth to one-half inch prevailed across the entire area.

Temperatures range from the high teens in the northern plains to 20s and 30s in most locations west of the Mississippi, with 40s and 50s along the west coast.

Readings in the 30s and 40s are found east of the Mississippi and moderating near the cold front with 50s and 60s common east of the cold front to the Atlantic.

Ice Show Is Suddenly Halted by Explosion

air. Rescue trucks, wreckers and a giant construction crane were pulled onto the ice to search for bodies still under the debris. The crane tower loomed against the blue and white satin backdrop of the stage trap-pings.

They set up the morgue on the rink. There were rows of blanket-covered figures, many of them charred from the flames accompanying the blast. The grim job of identification and notifying the relatives began.

In the hospitals, beds lined the corridors. Waiting rooms were turned into makeshift wards with the injured sprawled on couches and in chairs.

Methodist Hospital, where 95 of the more than 300 injured were taken, was already full before the explosion. Every emergency room was pressed into use.

Delegates from the National Association of Licensed Practical Nurses, conducting its convention in Indianapolis, streamed to the city's hospitals to offer aid.

Radio stations asked for blood donors. Two hundred donors jammed General Hospital.

By STEVE VAN CLEVE, INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "It was a roar like 20,000 — oh, God! 20,000,000 — thunderclaps," said Joan Berggren, 21, Imperial, Sask., end skater on the line in the Holiday on Ice Revue.

Miss Berggren was waiting in line at General Hospital early today to give blood for the injured in an explosion that killed scores during the ice show at the Indiana State Fairgrounds Coliseum Thursday night.

"We were on the opposite side of the ice and just heard a roar," she said. "I knew it was raining and thought lightning had hit the building. I thought of an earthquake also."

"I heard the roar and looked up and then ran for the curtains, because I thought the ceiling was falling. Then I looked back and saw the debris was horrible."

Jack Ladue, 35, Plattsburg, N.Y., one of the stars of the show, also was waiting at the hospital to give blood. He said he was in the wings waiting to take his final bow, when the explosion occurred.

"I don't think I've said the Lord's Prayer as many times in the last two years as I did to night," Ladue said. "It's a fantastic thing there was such a lack of panic. People had enough sense to just walk to the exits."

"Most of them just stood there dumfounded with a look on their face that said, 'It can't happen here but it does.'"

"Some poor little girl was pinned and eight or nine of us tried to get this piece of concrete 10 to 12 feet long off of her, but she was just—" Ladue shrugged and tears came to his eyes—"she was dead."

Ladue said, "The orchestra kept playing for a good 10 minutes—I say 10 minutes—it could have been only 3 or 4."

He said the show was only 3 minutes from its end and had started 12 to 15 minutes late.

Four Probers Begin Fraud Investigation

DENVER (AP) — Four investigators began looking into alleged frauds in unemployment compensation claims here.

They began their work with an initial load of 82 cases selected at random from state employment files. Lyle Lindesmith, the governor's liaison with the investigators said.

Two professors, one from Denver University and the other from the University of Colorado, selected the cases to be checked on statistical basis. Lindesmith said that the first batch of cases would serve as a pilot program to let the professors know whether their sampling procedures are working out properly.

After the investigators check the office file on the 82 cases they will go into field and make personal contacts with the individuals named in the files.

The investigation was spurred by State Auditor John Proctor's recent disclosure that the state may have been bilked of about $11 million in six years through fraudulent claims for unemployment compensation.

Electric Supply Hearing to Be Held in Denver

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Public Utilities Commission today set a Nov. 4 hearing date for arguments in a squabble between the Public Service Co. of Colorado and the Colorado-Ute Electric Association as to which will supply electric power to Aspen.

The hearing was requested by Public Service which wants to construct and operate a 69,000-volt power line from either Basalt or Carbondale to serve Aspen.

The city currently receives electric power from the U.S. Reclamation Bureau over power lines owned by Public Service and the Holy Cross Electric Association. This contract expires Nov. 9.

Last month the PUC granted Colorado-Ute permission to build the transmission line to serve Aspen. But Public Service now claims Colorado-Ute has done no further work on the line, which had a completion date of Nov. 1.

Public Service claims Colorado-Ute will not have the power line finished before the end of the year.

Public Service, whose application was filed Tuesday, claims also that Holy Cross facilities are overloaded and cannot stand the strain of a heavy winter power load.

Colorado-Ute is a Rural Electrification Administration cooperative operating out of Montrose.

Quiet Revolution Reported In Factory Race Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "quiet revolution" in race relations is taking place in the nation's factories and workshops, says the man who runs day-to-day operations of President Kennedy's equal employment program.

"We're not talking about race any more. We're talking about human beings," says Hobart Taylor Jr.

Taylor, 42 and a Negro lawyer from Detroit, is executive vice chairman of the President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity.

The committee, which has vast power to stop discrimination in a contract or program involving the federal government, has taken corrective action in about 3,000 cases out of approximately 5,000 complaints so far in its two years of existence.

"But this does not begin to touch the number of people that have been helped," Taylor said in an interview today in his office in the Labor Department.

Taylor likes to cite as an example the committee's success in persuading U.S. Steel Corp.'s Tennessee Coal and Iron Division in Birmingham, Ala., to erase racial lines in promotion and seniority.

The program caused not a ripple of racial trouble, Taylor said, even though it began when Negroes were demonstrating in Birmingham earlier this year.

40-Hour Work Week Seen for State Workers

By STEPHEN M. AUG.
DENVER (AP) — A new regulation putting into effect a maximum 40-hour week for most state employees may be approved next week, Gov. John A. Love indicated today.
The regulation stems from a Senate bill passed at the last legislative session which essentially establishes the maximum 40-hour week, defines positions covered by overtime pay and sets up new standards for work beyond 40 hours.
Excluded from overtime pay will be professionals, technicians, managerial and administrative personnel. The old law excluded all non-administrative employees from overtime and many state officials felt the wording was not sufficiently specific.
The new regulation also spells out the fact that employees may be given compensatory time off instead of time and one half in cash. The decision on this is left up to the department head, except in cases where an employee accumulates 40 hours time off.

then time and one half must be paid in cash. The old law was silent on compensatory time off.
Between 8,000 and 9,000 of the employees are covered by overtime provisions.
Gray Spurlin, state controller said the new overtime provision may cost the state roughly $57,000 to $100,000 more than at present.
About $300,000 was paid by the state in overtime last year, the largest amount, $1,681,000, going to the State Hospital. Workers at the State Penitentiary received about $191,500.
Although many state workers are currently on a 37½ hour week, their work week would not be lengthened by the new regulation.

Court Is Convinced War Is Not Yet Over

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Norris W. Gardner, 23, an Army reservist, convinced a corporation court jury that World War II hostilities never ceased but merely evolved into today's cold war.
As a result, the six-man jury acquitted him Wednesday of driving a car without a license.
Gardner's lawyer cited a 1945 state law exempting servicemen from driver's license regulations for six months after their discharge. It provides the measure is effective until "cessation of hostilities in the present war." The defense argued this has not occurred.
Gardner is a television repair shop owner and was among re-

Gangsters Are Indicted in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted nine men, including one identified by informer Joe Valachi as the chief of the Cosa Nostra crime organization in Philadelphia, on charges of strongarm collection operations for loan sharks.
Angelo Bruno, identified by Valachi as an organized crime leader in the Philadelphia area, and four other defendants had been named in a preliminary complaint filed Oct. 19.
The indictment by a grand jury in Philadelphia today was based on alleged violations of a new anti-racketeering law forbidding interstate travel for racketeering purposes — in this case, extortion, in violation of New Jersey and Pennsylvania laws.
Atty Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said the victims were two Philadelphia businessmen who borrowed money for a real estate venture. He did not identify them.
Kennedy said threats and beatings began when the men were unable to pay interest rates of more than 100 per cent in eight weeks.
Named as defendants in the eight-count indictment were: Angelo Bruno Annaloro, 53, also known as Angelo Bruno or as "A. B.", Philadelphia; Harold Konigsberg, 34, Lodi, N.J.; Ignazio Denaro, 59, Philadelphia; Armand Colianni, 47, Philadelphia; and Samuel James Roberts, 35, New York. These five also were named in the earlier complaint. Bruno still is being sought by the FBI. The others already are in jail.
Other defendants are: Phillip Charles Testa, 39, Philadelphia; Anthony Stassi, 54, New York; Joseph Lucignano, 40, Hoboken, N.J.; and Edward Skowron, age and address unknown.

Seven Lakes Gets One Inch Moisture From Snowfall

Up to 16 inches of wet, heavy snow was dumped on some sections of the Colorado Springs watershed and on Pikes Peak during the first big storm of the autumnal season.

City Water Superintendent Jack McCullough said 16 inches of snow fell at Seven Lakes on the South Slope of Pikes Peak. More than one inch of moisture was contained in the snow.

About a foot of snow fell at Ruxton Park and it contained .90 of an inch of precipitation.

The 12 to 16 inches of snow was general at higher elevations on Pikes Peak.

Jack Sullivan, superintendent of the Pikes Peak Highway, said the storm left 14 inches of snow at Glen Cove and about 16 inches near the 14,110-foot summit.

The Pikes Peak Auto Highway was closed for the season Thursday but a one-way route will be maintained for awhile for those working on construction of the Pikes Peak summit house.

Even tho the beautiful Indian Summer has helped the summit house workers, some wind-up jobs on the new construction will have to be completed next spring. W. E. Ross Construction Co., Denver, is the general contractor.

Traffic Offenses Bring $15 Fines In JP Court

Eldridge L. Garlington, 30, of Ft. Carson, was found guilty Thursday of two traffic violations by Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane.

He was cited by State Patrolman Gordon W. Baumgardner Oct. 20 on Colorado Highway 115 for permitting an unauthorized person to drive his vehicle, and for unlawful use of his driver's license.

Judge McShane assessed the fine at $15 and $4 court costs. Judge McShane also fined Alexander Holt Jr., 19, Ft. Carson, who was in the vehicle with Garlington, $15 and $4 for driving without a valid operator's license, for displaying a fraudulent driver's license, and for having no registration card in the vehicle.

William L. Hoffman, 27, Ft. Carson, was found guilty of speeding 60-miles per hour in a 45-m.p.h. posted zone.

He was fined $20 and $4 costs. Patrolman Pete Thiel ticketed him Sept. 30 on North Nevada Avenue.

School District Change to Be Voted Monday

Voters will go to the polls Monday to decide whether an area of two and one-half square miles in Skyway Park should be detached from School District 11 and annexed by School District 12, the Cheyenne Mountain district.

To be eligible to vote in the special election, a person must meet the usual citizenship, age, and residence requirements. In addition, he must have paid a tax on property located within the area to be detached.

Officially the area is described as the north one-half of Sections 19-20-21-22-23 of Township 14 South, Range 67 West.

The polling place at 1512 Argus Dr. will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., Nov. 4.

Testimony Clears Driver Of Light Violation Count

Two witnesses to a two-car collision Oct. 1 testified Thursday in Municipal Court that an instant after the impact, they immediately looked at the signal light on South Weber Street and East Colorado Avenue.

The testimony by Don Hartman, 512 N. 12th St., and George Croft, 2804 W. Platte Ave., cleared Gerald Shipp, 20, Manitou Springs, of charges of a signal light violation and careless driving.

But because of the testimony, Judge Allan Asher found Peter Cunningham, 60, 1114 Cheyenne Blvd., guilty of a signal light violation, although the defendant had claimed that the light was in his favor.

Cunningham's testimony, however, showed no evidence of careless driving and the judge handed down a not guilty finding on this charge against the man.

Man Has Lived on the Nile 300,000 Years, Prof. Says

A Colorado University archeological expedition in the Sudan was the time of the last glacial (in Africa) has found evidences that man has lived along the banks of the Nile River for as much as 300,000 years, according to a university professor.

He is Dr. Gordon Hughes, of the CU anthropology department, who was director of the CU field operation in the Republic of Sudan last year.

The findings of the CU team are not unique, but do substantiate findings of other scientific teams, he pointed out in a lecture at Colorado College Thursday night, which he illustrated with slides.

CU is one of a number of academic institutions in this country that has an expedition doing archeological work in the area of Egypt and Sudan that will be flooded when the Aswan Dam is completed.

The new dam, being erected by Egyptians with the help of Russians, will be near the site of the first Aswan Dam built in the last century by the British. It will create a lake about 200 miles long as it backs up the waters of the Nile River. The lake will be the largest man-made lake in the world and will flood present village sites as well as some of the ruins left behind by men of long ago.

To preserve as much as possible of the records of early man in that area, the governments of the United Arab Republic (Egypt) and the Republic of Sudan have given research contracts to various institutions.

CU has a contract on a five and one-half square mile piece of land near Wadi Halfa, a Sudanese city just south of the Egyptian border on the Nile. The area in which the CU expedition still is digging spans a long major portion of man's history.

Hughes said that the pebble tools and crude flint axes found in areas that were once close to the banks of the Nile when it flowed on a level about 100 yards higher than now indicate that man was there 300,000 to 400,000 years ago.

Man's history goes forward on different levels thru the stone age to a Christian era that lasted about 600 years before it was swept away by the flood of Mohammedanism, Hughes said.

Indications in the area show that 20,000 to 15,000 years ago the Sahara area was lush pasture land with lots of rains, he said.

Motor Firm In Top Three For UF Drive

Outstanding United Fund support by employees and management of Doenges Long has placed this firm in the top three in the Pikes Peak Region, according to K. G. Freyschlag, United Fund general chairman.

The $5,100 Contribution includes a $4,000 employee gift averaging $36 per worker. This ties the Exchange National Bank employee donation and is only slightly below the Colorado Interstate Gas Company, the highest in the community.

A. W. Ellis, loaned executive of the corporation, who headed the drive at Doenges Long, said, "We weren't out to set any records, just to do a good job for this community effort in which we all believe."

Ellis had the backing of M. Philip Long, Doenges Long president in the complicated employee-education program which preceded solicitation.

"The film made the difference," Ellis said. He was referring to the local seven minute United Fund film which he showed to the employees of each department before asking for contributions. The film depicts briefly how the money given to the Pikes Peak United Fund is used in behalf of the 33 affiliated agencies.

Employees were given an opportunity to space their contributions in easy installments through a payroll plan.

"This high average attained in Doenges Long and the Exchange National Bank, means a gift of just $3 a month through the payroll mechanism, a sacrifice that most healthy, employed adults are willing to make for those less fortunate," Freyschlag said.

The drive for $480,000 is in the clean-up phase now with a final report scheduled for November 27.

Don M. Hatchell, 29, of 129 Ithaca St., Security, was found guilty of two traffic violations Thursday by Justice of the Peace James F. Quine Jr.

He was cited by State Patrolman J. D. Morrissey Wednesday for driving a vehicle with no license plates, and also driving without a valid operator's license. The offenses occurred at the intersection of Colorado and Nevada Avenues.

Judge Quine assessed a fine of $5 on each count and $4 court costs.

Also found guilty of two traffic violations was James Louon Irwin, 24, 2809 N. Concord St.

Patrolman J. E. McDaniel ticketed him Monday on South Nevada Avenue for following another vehicle too closely and not having adequate foot brakes on his own vehicle.

Irwin also was fined $5 on each count and $4 costs.

Two cases of careless driving were heard by Judge Quine.

Newell E. Gile, 41, Box 72, Palmer Lake, was ticketed for the offense Thursday on North Nevada Avenue by Patrolman J. Fred Henderson.

For a similar offense, Jerry R. Dyches, 34, Ft. Carson, was ticketed Wednesday at the intersection of Nevada and Colorado Avenue by Patrolman J. D. Morrissey.

Both Gile and Dyches were fined $5 and $4 costs each by Judge Quine.

William D. Newkirk, 22, 1003 Kingsley Dr., was cited on July 1 on North Circle Dr. by Police Cpl. E. J. Butler and Police Officer Wayne C. Hodson for driving without registration plates.

Fine was assessed at $5 and $4 costs.

Judge Quine fined two other persons $5 and $4 costs for traffic violations. They were:

Peggy D. Anderson, 39, 3303 N. Hancock Ave., for driving without a valid operator's license.

She was ticketed by Patrolman Pete Thiel Sunday on North Hancock Avenue.

Otho Caldwell, 59, 1728 W. Pikes Peak Ave., who was cited by Patrolman Pete Thiel on Sinton Road Sunday for following another car too closely.

Franklin Lemons, 30, Seattle, Wash., pleaded not guilty to a vagrancy charge. His hearing will be today.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Government Debt— Unsound Money Base

By OSCAR COOLEY
Associate Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

The United States Treasury borrows money in two different ways:

1. It sells bonds and other securities to the general public, receiving cash or checks in payment. This transfers purchasing power from the public to the government, but it does not increase the nation's money supply and therefore is not inflationary.

2. It sells securities to the commercial banks (that is, banks which give check service) and receives not cash or checks, but deposit credit, that is, new checkbook money. This process does increase the money supply and therefore is inflationary. In fact, that is the one way in which inflation has been generated in our time. Called "deficit financing," it is the modern engine of inflation. It is an engine that must be stopped if we would have a sound dollar.

Our commercial banks hold some $70 billion of government bonds. The Federal Reserve banks hold another $30 billion. This bank-held debt represents a vast extension of credit by the banks to the government.

When business firms borrow from commercial banks, their debt, too, represents extension of credit by the banks. How do the two differ?

The inescapable conclusion seems to be that we must have a Washington super-authority to make plans for the academic segment of our society and to coordinate as well as pay for education through a central bureaucracy.

The predominant characteristic of American higher education has been its diversity. Each collegiate institution has its own particular nature, totally distinguishable from every other. The degree to which spiritual concerns affect the student during his undergraduate years ranges on different campuses from predominance to insignificance. Similarly, the political impact upon the student varies from pure conservatism at one college to extreme liberalism at other institutions. College curricula differ to a much greater extent than is generally recognized. I am convinced that it is a convergence of diversely educated people in each of the different enterprises of our society that has been the one condition which more than any other has made ours a dynamic, successful and altruistic nation.

Streamlined

Communism is nothing but modern socialism. It is streamlined collectivism with a bludgeon in one hand and the gospel by Marx in the other.

Private Support For All Schools

We are continuing here some quotations from a recent article by Dr. John A. Howard, president of Rockford College. He has to say of great importance and we trust you will read it carefully.

"What fosters this diversity? Principally, it is the autonomy of the various institutions. As a college conceives or receives a new idea that seems promising, it has to sell it only to its own board of control. However, each new educational undertaking of the federal government provides a single board of control and thus diversity of American education is curtailed.

"I do not know of one college executive who would not quickly agree that programs now supported on our campuses by federal funds could be carried on at least as effectively by a comparable amount of funds from other sources and, in many, many cases, could be conducted with more imagination, more flexibility, less both and at a much lower cost. Why, then, do not the same executives oppose federal aid? The answer is money."

"Money is a good servant but a dangerous master. The only legitimate justification for federal aid is that education lacks money and the federal government is far more prodigal with its funds than are other sources. If only the proponents of federal aid would come right out and state this fact, we could face the issue head on and measure what the easy money buys against what we must sacrifice in order to obtain it from Washington.

"It is undeniable that our increasingly technical society requires an increasingly skilled and knowledgeable population and, to accomplish this end, a larger part of gross national product must be invested in education.

"The issue is whether this urgent objective is to be achieved through congressional action—which forces people to pay more for education and at the same time diminishes the diversity and circumscribes the creativity of the separate colleges—or whether the nation can be persuaded to provide the necessary funds through traditional sources and thus preserve the freedom and the strength of American education.

"I cannot believe that my colleagues in college administration would so readily forfeit the full potential of their respective institutions if they fully realized what was at stake. As difficult as their financial future may appear to them, it cannot be the reason for abandoning integrity. The course of educational statesmanship is to protect the greatest creative potential and the great institutional individuality. That course does not lie via the Federal Treasury.

"The college executives and the officers of the government who may have a part through their silent or vocal support of federal subsidy will have to answer to history for the consequences of their work.

"May this nation recognize in time the stake it has in keeping education decentralized and unfederalized. If these views make sense to you, I urge you to do everything in your power to defeat additional federal subsidies of education and also to increase the flow of funds to limiting, but government borrowing is limited only by the total tax-paying ability of private persons, or the tax-collecting power of government.

Checkbook money based on government debt, then, does not create any new credit, as business borrowing does; it only appropriates, or steals, credit already created—credit which the business system badly needs for its own use.

Money based on government debt, then, is unsound money, while money based on business debt is sound money. The Treasury should stop borrowing from commercial banks.

To do so would be to discontinue the creation of our principal form of money—checkbook money—by government and to place the creation of such money wholly in the hands of private firms and private commercial banks. Whether a given block of such money should be created would be up to the final discretion of the banker to whom he applied for a loan.

Whether at any given time the total money supply should be increased or not would not be up to the decision of Washington politicians—always eager to spend more money—but would be decided by the profit-making prospects of the vast American business community as a whole. It would be decided, not by the decree of a Secretary of the Treasury, or a President, but by the independent decisions of many thousands of business enterprisers and bankers throughout America.

No sounder basis for a money system can be imagined. As a first step toward bringing about such a system, the commercial banks should cease lending to the federal government. In next week's article, I shall raise the question, is such lending necessary?

GOOD AND EVIL

To the Editor:
Many things, pleasant to hear, are said and written in the name of patriotism. But the sole objective of man-made government is to apply power and force one person, a dozen persons or a million to do something that they would not do otherwise. Whether the person wielding the power does good or evil is entirely his decision to make.

The men who wrote the Declaration of Independence recognized that individual lives ought to be governed by the laws and will of God. The Bill of Rights became a part of the Constitution to insure the unalienable rights. Every one of the first ten amendments to the Constitution (Bill of Rights) was a prohibition against the power of the government to infringe on individual rights.

Every good thing has a corresponding evil thing and individual human beings are subject to all of them. Whether it be the newest citizen or the president of the United States, all Americans are continually making decisions to serve either good or evil. Since no man has been able, without the power of God, to consistently serve good purposes, it isn't likely that any president will make decisions which will improve the conditions and strengthen the moral fiber of the citizens, without His help.

We, the people, find no fault with requiring those elected to public office to take an oath with their hands on the Bible. Yet we do not want any part of the Bible used in any way in the public schools. How inconsistent can we get? Or maybe we should ask how long it will be before we require that oaths of office be no longer given.

They'll Do It Every Time

To The Point

The New Prime Minister

By RUSSELL KIRK

Somewhat shy, but an astute diplomat, the Earl of Home has succeeded Mr. Macmillan as prime minister and as leader of the Conservative Party. He is a thoroughgoing and consistent Conservative, unpopular with no faction of his party. And within a year he will have the most difficult task of fighting a general election against the Socialists.

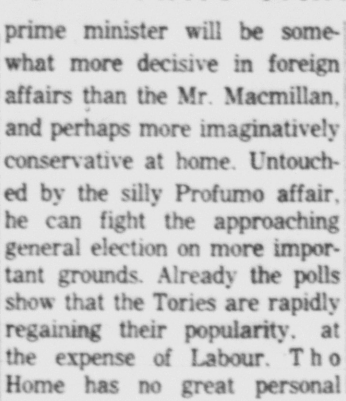

For the first time, a lord will resign from the peerage to take a seat in the House of Commons, so as to be able to serve as prime minister. Thus Lord Home will reduce himself to a mere baronet (baronets not being entitled to sit in the House of Lords, and so counting, in law as commoners).

Lord Hailsham—or Mr. Quintin Hogg, as he is about to become once more—also has resigned his peerage, with the post of prime minister in view, but he was the most popular man with the Tory party workers, opposition in the cabinet and the House of Commons proved too strong for him. This may turn out to have been a grave error for the Tories, since Hailsham (or Hogg) knows how to fight an election, and is fertile in imagination. Altho he is one of the most intellectual of Tories, his book, "The Case for Conservatism," written two decades ago, did much to restore coherence and respectability to the Conservative Party at the end of the Second World War.

Of the other contenders for the Tory leadership, Mr. R. A. Butler must be the most disappointed: four times he has just fallen short of winning the party leadership. This month he seems to have been undone by his own tongue, for his address to the Tory conference at Blackpool was dull and disheartening, full of worn clichés, and sounding like a defensive Conservatism twenty years out of date.

A century ago, Walter Bagehot remarked that the English are a deferential nation. So, in some degree, they remain today—at least the Conservatives. Only in Britain, perhaps, would a nobleman of ancient family and great landed properties still be chosen to lead a mass-party in a mass-age. There is nothing of the common man about Lord Home, and no touch of the demagogue. Far from making him suspect to the British electorate, Lord Home's gentlemanliness, his easy dignity, and his aristocratic heritage are at least some asset to him in practical politics.

The odds are that this new

These Days

British Politics

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

When Richard Austen—or Rab—Butler was denied the prime minister's post in Britain for the second time in seven years by the Conservative Party "establishment," it seemed to many to constitute a rank injustice. For it was Mr. Butler, in company with Ian Macleod, who had done most of the hard dog work that had gone into the post-World War II revitalization of British conservatism. It must have caused Mr. Butler excruciating pain to see the prime minister's portfolio go to the relatively unknown Lord Home.

The by-passing of Butler, however, seems to be quite in line with world trends in political affairs, for everywhere there might be called polarized political representation. In his own way Rab Butler has been an "opening to the left" man in British conservative circles, which is to say that his political outlines are smudged. He has been against the Laborites and the Socialists, yes. But when Butler commenced his work some fifteen years ago of refurbishing the Tory "image," it seemed politically necessary to accept most of the Laborite welfare state measures.

Butler, an intellectual, labored hard and long to give conservatism a conservative twist. But in doing this he incurred the slur that he was a "me too" character. True enough, he talked of preserving a society in which incentives would bulk larger than "fair share" restrictions. But the Butler formulas usually ended in a "yes-but" area—yes, we should encourage private industry, but we must retain the social services.

to which we have become accustomed.

The Rab Butler "image," then, is of a man of the middle, a centrist. But the centrist everywhere are having difficulty these days. They lost votes in Italy when they bid for Socialist support; they get nowhere in De Gaulle's France. It was not so long ago that a Wendell Wilkie, a Thomas Dewey, or a non-political General Eisenhower, could marshal the big battalions behind them in fighting for the supreme prize of the American presidency. These were "modern Republicans," very like the "progressive Conservatives" who constitute the Rab Butler-Ian Macleod wing of the British Tory party. But in 1963 "modern Republicanism" is like a boat without oars. Goldwater, a man of clear outlines, is drawing more and more young Republicans to his standard while Nelson Rockefeller, an American version of Rab Butler, is having his difficulties. No doubt there is some slumgery and insincerity in the turn toward conservative polarization on the part of both British Tories and American Republicans. But there is sound instinct, too. The world is getting tired of mealy-mouthedness. People in the democracies expect their leaders to compromise once they are in office, but they are beginning to ask that compromises be made with some regard to general mandates and general philosophical goals.

The British Conservative who is willing to compromise toward Socialism as a limit is giving way to the Conservative who wants the compromise to go at least a short distance the other way. Lord Home, a man of clear speech, has suddenly become preferable to Rab Butler, the man of blurred edges. And Barry Goldwater, instead of being criticized as a "Neanderthal" for preferring freedom to security, is evoking a curious respect even among those who disagree with some of the things he says.

TREND

This is not to say that either the British Tories or the American Republicans, if they are to be the rulers in their respective countries through the late nineteen sixties, will abolish the progressive income tax, get rid of all government controls, and abandon the U.N. to the Afro-Asian bloc. But it does mean that new "working directions" will be instituted. More and more attempts will be made to mitigate the steepness of progressive taxation in the middle and upper brackets in order to encourage the sort of investment that multiplies into many jobs. As Britain's foreign minister, Lord Home took the unprecedented step a few weeks ago of using the U.N. as a real sounding board for British interests. A conservative Republican in the White House would almost certainly insist on a similar U.N. policy for America.

Suddenly it is precision in political definition that people are coming to want. The rise of the Lord Homes and the Barry Goldwaters in Anglo-American politics is nothing strange. It merely acknowledges a trend.

Where Liberty Dwells

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

It seems to me that when Benjamin Franklin said, "Where liberty dwells, there is my country," he made one of the most poignant utterances of his entire career. "WHERE LIBERTY DWELLS, THERE IS MY COUNTRY."

What about the country where liberty does not dwell? Obviously, without liberty, the concept of private property is unable to exist. If the right to own private property does not exist, it is futile to pretend that even one square foot of the country can be mine.

This is written in answer to a letter writer who asked, "Since you seem to be opposed to our great and powerful system of government and all it means to real Americans, I want to ask if you would willingly leave your country if you had the opportunity?"

The letter writer infers that what he calls "real Americans" want the most powerful government possible, and that a powerful government is good, and I say that what is good for the letter writer is the worst possible form of government as far as I am concerned. Powerful governments steadily weaken the people who are governed and this is a fact, but I will reply specifically to the question asked by the letter writer. If I can find a country where liberty dwells, that will be my country! I believe it is obvious that I would prefer to see the people in the country where I was born standing on their own two feet, strong in their own beliefs in their own rights and their ability to stand on their own two feet in liberty and freedom. I do not believe I will ever see that day!

I have never read a precise definition of the expression, "real American," and I eagerly await such a definition from the letter writer who loves a powerful government. It is entirely possible that the vast majority of "real Americans" do want the most powerful government possible and they will not have to wait long. I want to see government reduced to a degree which will be agonizing to government, so that it may be further reduced, so human beings can get about the proper business of attending to their own lives, so they may pursue the happiness which each individual may want for himself, and that they may live in the bright and shining light of freedom as in its absolute right. I did you not, I'm fed up with self-proclaimed "real Americans" who are more than willing to have their powerful government steal from others for their benefit. They don't like to call it thievery or socialism or totalitarianism and they persist in blinding themselves to the fact that accepting what has been taken from others by force, is evil.

For the moment, at least, I know of no place on earth where liberty dwells, except in my heart and in my mind. Because I know that to be free is my absolute right, I know what liberty and freedom mean to me. In ancient Rome, before it fell under the sheer weight of a huge and parasitical government, Romans who criticized the governmental lust for more and more power were told to get out and find another country if they didn't like what was going on—and many did just that.

A few Germans who believed in their right to freedom managed to get out from under the heels of Hitler and today, victims of communism manage to escape every day in the week but they escape to a condition which is only less evil. They are unable to find a country where liberty dwells. They escape to countries where governments are only more or less powerful, more or less evil.

And so, too, have we escaped to a state in which the government is only barely less impedimentary than in the state we left. I guess it is quite obvious that I was not a "real Californian." I had put roots down deeply in California but not deeply enough to avoid the onerous tyranny of governmental gigantism. The roots were no longer mine, the power of the state had no respect for the property rights of the people. I owed the state of California nothing. It owed me thousands of tax dollars it had stolen from me and countless hours of involuntary servitude. You bet—I would move to where liberty dwells, but at the moment liberty and freedom dwell only in my heart and in my mind.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 362: "What is the meaning of equality of opportunity that we hear so much about?"

Answer: Undoubtedly, there are many different interpretations of the meaning of equality of opportunity. It certainly cannot mean that each person has an equal right to a job because every person is different and has different qualifications for different jobs. It is of the utmost importance that a man get into the job that he can perform better than anyone else. Emerson contends that every individual can do some particular thing better than any other person can do it.

A friend remarked that equal opportunity meant that a one-legged man had an equal opportunity to try to win a race as a man with two legs. It certainly doesn't mean that people have the equal opportunity to win, or equal ability to accomplish things. About all it really can mean is that they have equal opportunity to use moral action to try to develop their own physical and mental faculties. It doesn't mean that they have a right to have anything given to them or get a job when an employer would rather have someone else. Or that they have a right to keep a job when the employer believes he could better serve his customers by having a different employee. Since the entrepreneur, or the enterpriser as he is commonly known, has to stand all the loss and the employees, as long as there is enough to pay their salary, stand no loss, it would seem that the employer should have the final right to make the decisions. He is the one who is taking the risks and he is the one who suffers the loss first. If, of course, there is no loss, he should have the gain as a payment for his efficiency. Profits are nothing but a reward for efficiency.

Probably the logical conclusion is that everyone has an equal right to try to advance, but they have no right to demand special privileges.

Questions are limited to general human relations questions that will improve the well-being of all mankind on this earth.

Under the direction of Diane Van Sant Senior, Cadette, Junior and Brownie Scout troops and their guests will take part in an evening of fun.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

His Yard Faces Submersion

DEAR ABBY: I am a happy bachelor and here is my problem. Two neighbors, one right next door to me on my left, and the other right next door to me on my right, are divorcees. They both tell me their troubles and cry over both fences whenever they catch me outside. Now my back yard is flooded with their tears and my grass is drowning. How can I keep these two husband-losers from ruining my yard? —HAPPY BACHELOR

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister who isn't the smartest person in the world, but I love her. She tells me her troubles and cries on my shoulder. She has a husband, but he's no help. (He cries on his mother's.) Well, my sis called me at 4:15 this morning and scared my husband out of his wits. She wanted to know if she should call the police to look for her 18-year-old daughter who went out on a date and wasn't home yet. She was hysterical, Abby. I'll admit she's called at odd hours for reasons like there was a mouse in her bedroom, she is terrified of thunder storms, etc. But this time she really needed me, and my husband refused to drive me over there to calm her down. (I don't drive.) He said if anything like that ever happens again, I can go live with my sister. Who was unreasonable? —BIG SISTER

DEAR ABBY: I can't blame your husband for being fed up with your sister's hysteria. Tell sis to lay off the nocturnal S.O.S.'s, or you will lose your happy home.

DEAR ABBY: I have the perfect solution for the busy housewife who was embarrassed by the thoughtless person who just happened to be in the neighborhood so she thought she'd drop in and pay a social call. Bake a pie or something and take it over to her house. But don't give her any notice. Just ring her bell like she rang yours. —TURN ABOUT

Open Season Reported on Undertaking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — This is apparently the open season on the undertaking business.

It started with Jessica Mitford's book, "The American Way of Death," a current best-seller. Last week there was "CBS Reports" with a documentary called "The Great American Funeral."

And Thursday night "Dr. Kildare" busily exposed the operations of a rascally undertaker. The statistics and terminology used in the dialogue suggested that Miss Mitford's book was the handy reference used by the script writers.

The story focused on the widow of one of Dr. Kildare's patients. Grief-stricken and naive, she fell into the hands of a sympathetic, smooth-talking mortician and eagerly paid for an expensive service—and casket—with insurance money needed for her son's college education.

"CBS Reports" gave representative morticians some TV time to answer the charges. The only concession they were given on the NBC dramatic show were a few lines by Dr. Gillespie, who explained that "every business has its Browns." Brown was the villain of the piece.

The program, called "The Exploiters," was an unsubtle, sharp attack.

Maybe it's time for a new TV series about dedicated morticians. Their TV image needs some brightening.

Busy Bob Hope, who has been around television since its early days, will be making a TV debut of sorts Nov. 15. He will make his bow as a television actor—as opposed to variety show star—in a comedy drama called "The House Next Door" on his NBC anthology series.

Hitherto, Hope has confined his acting to motion pictures.

The young television viewers have at least two very special treats in store.

Next Sunday there's an NBC original musical fantasy—in color—called "Quillow and the Giant," based on a James Thurber story (which suggests it will hold charm for older viewers, too). It will be acted by puppets (except for the giant character) and has an original musical score.

On Nov. 28, there's another original musical fantasy on ABC, "The Cowboy and the Tiger." This one has human performers including David Wayne.

Recommended weekend viewing: Teen-age Miss America Pageant, CBS, 10-11 (EST) finals of a beauty contest, from Dallas.

Sunday—Memorial service for Eleanor Roosevelt, NBC, 1:30-2 p.m., on the first anniversary of her death; "Quillow and the Giant," NBC, 6-7; "20th Century," BS, 6-6:30, on Lord Louis Mountbatten.

Skyway Girl Scouts Hold 'Fly-Up' Rites

Typical of the many rededication ceremonies in the Girl Scouts' Wagon Wheel Council was the "Fly-up" Ceremony for Skyway's Girl Scout Troop 224 which was held at Hamp Hut in the Garden of the Gods, Oct. 25.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Jerry I. Love, Mrs. Roland Anderson, and Mrs. Donald Sachs, the members of the Troop had an out-of-doors flag ceremony with Carter Laing and Cynthia Love as Scouts-in-Charge; Heidi Sachs as color bearer; Jeannine Fields, Amy Beth Markowitz, Robin Lee and Ingrid Nyberg as color guards.

Following the flag ceremony the Troop and guests went inside the Hut for the Candle-Lighting and pinning ceremony. Mrs. Sachs conducted the candle-lighting ceremony in which the Troop members gave their Girl Scout Promise, accepted the Girl Scout Laws and received their "wings," and GS Pins from Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Love. Dawn Anderson, Cecilia Ochse, Katherine Page, Sandra Bean, Valerie Dodson, Laura Hilfers and Lisa Miller sang, "Where'er We Make a Promise, 'twill be Peace."

Mardis Slosky, Marilee Ledbetter, Kim Lohse, Sonja Stiehl, Joan Huber, Lynn Bonelli, and Susan Armstrong provided and served cookies and punch to mothers and guests.

The program was concluded with "Congratulatory and Best Wishes for a good Scouting year to the twenty-one new Junior Girl Scouts of Troop 224."

Judge Says He Will Keep Negro Girl in Jail

By DON MCKEE

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — A juvenile court judge testified before a federal panel that he will continue to hold a 14-year-old Negro girl in jail without bail until a hearing is set on charges against her.

Judge James W. Smith spoke Thursday as a hearing opened on efforts to enjoin officials from interfering with desegregation activities in this southwest Georgia city.

The girl, Sallie Mae Durham, leaders jailed nearly three months ago during the demonstrations. More than 200 Negroes were arrested.

A three-judge federal court is hearing testimony in suits aimed at freeing the prisoners, including four out-of-state youths charged with attempting to incite insurrection. The offense carries the death penalty.

In the first day, 11 witnesses for the integration leaders went to the stand as attorneys sought to prove a conspiracy by state, county and city officials to deprive the prisoners and other citizens of constitutional rights.

Miss Durham and others testified that policemen and state patrolmen had beaten Negroes. James Williams, 28, hobbled to the witness chair on crutches, his left leg in a cast. He told the court that state patrolmen broke his leg in an unprovoked attack the night of Aug. 9. He said he was beaten by state and city officers and spent 18 days in a hospital.

The suits seek to free John Perdue, of Denver, a Harvard student; Ralph W. Allen, 22, of Melrose, Mass., a student on leave from Trinity College at Hartford, Conn.; Zev Aelony, 25, of Minneapolis, former student at the University of Minnesota; and Donald Harris, 24, of New York, a Negro graduate of Rutgers University—all charged with trying to incite insurrection—and Thomas McDaniel, 19, of Americus, held in $12,000 bail on lesser charges.

Halloween Is Used By Armed Robbers

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sam Nahin, 55, a suburban jewelry salesman, kept his front door open Thursday night so it would be easier to serve youngsters making the Halloween trick-or-treat rounds.

Two Halloween masks appeared at the door, but they were worn by pistol-packing men.

The gunmen bound and gagged Nahin and his wife, then drove off with the salesman's car and about $12,000 worth of jewelry.

Many problems of dummy play can be greatly simplified if declarer is patient enough to employ the "question and answer" routine. South's setback in his vulnerable four spade contract reveals a lack of planning that may occasionally afflict the more experienced campaigner.

West opened the jack of diamonds which South won in his hand. Declarer ruffed out the deuce of diamonds and proceeds to draw trumps in three rounds. The heart suit appeared to offer the best prospect for developing a 10th trick, so South led the jack of hearts next. When West played low declarer was confronted with a guess. ### Korth Assailed In Warplane Issue by Solon Milward L. Simpson, R-Wyo., claimed Thursday outgoing Secretary of the Navy Fred Korth should have disqualified himself from participating in the TFX warplane contract.

A little later President Kennedy countered that "there is no evidence that Korth benefited in any way" in the awarding of the contract to General Dynamics Corp.

Simpson, in a speech to the Senate delivered on Korth's last day in office, urged his fellow senators to demand a Justice Department investigation of his actions.

Simpson rejected findings of the Justice Department that it found no violation of conflict of interest laws, stating that a thorough investigation is not only necessary "but long overdue."

Simpson also contended that Korth used his office to advance the business of the Continental National Bank of Ft. Worth, Tex., of which he was a former president.

He said General Dynamics—the high bidder on the TFX project—had deposited amounts ranging from $100,000 to $500,000 in interest-free accounts at the bank.

Kennedy told a news conference he has no evidence that Korth "acted improperly" or "benefited in any way" from the Pentagon's TFX warplane contract decision. He also rejected Simpson's claim that any conflict of interest question could be raised against Korth.

Korth resigned unexpectedly after 22 months in office giving "personal reasons" for his decision.

The Senate investigators subcommittee is probing the 1962 award of the TFX tactical fighter contract to General Dynamics despite Boeing Co.'s design which promised a better and cheaper model.

Actor Says He Is Happiest In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Why can't actors be less emotional and more professional?" asks Fernando Lamas, returned from two years of movie-making in Europe.

"When I went to Rome two years ago, it was filled with American actors who couldn't get work in Hollywood," said the Argentine-born star. "Most of them were handing out the same line of talk — Hollywood was dead, it was going to be a ghost town, never again would it be the movie capital of the world."

"Now I am back in Hollywood and the same actors are here now. They are saying that Rome is dead as a movie center, the working conditions there are miserable for actors, they never will go back."

"I just read such an interview with an actor who shall be nameless. He was the same actor I met at Jeffrey Hunter's pool a year ago in Rome and he was saying that Rome was absolute heaven!"

The Lamas point is this: "Why do actors have to blast a place just because they can't get work there? Doctors, lawyers and architects aren't so unprofessional."

Lamas was frank in discussing the reason he left Hollywood: Work was scarce for him here. He went first to Spain, where he starred in "The Magic Fountain." He also directed the film, something he could not get a chance to do here.

He moved on to Rome, where he made four films, including "The Avenger" and "d'Artagnan." The Roman industry has slowed down but is far from going out of business, he reported.

"It's simply a matter of overproduction," he said. "They made 275 pictures in Rome last year. That is far too many, and a lot of the pictures can't get playing time in Italy. Naturally the money men started to back off because of the over-supply."

Lamas explained the reason for his return to Hollywood: "I can live anywhere. I am in the peculiar position of having been born in South America, educated in Europe and having worked much of my life in this country. I find that I am happiest here. I suppose that is because I have spent most of my adult years here—the most important part of a man's life. And, although I have had some ups and downs, personally and otherwise, I have had my greatest success in Hollywood."

Fargo Can't Get Gas For Its Courthouse

FARGO, N.D. (AP)—Plans to convert the Fargo Courthouse heating system from coal to natural gas have gone up in smoke.

It's illegal in North Dakota to heat state or county buildings with any fuel not native to North Dakota, says the attorney general.

Lignite coal is mined in North Dakota. Natural gas also is produced. But Fargo's gas comes from Canada.

Passports to enter Canada or to return to the United States are not required of United States citizens, but native-born citizens must carry documents identifying themselves as such.

Always let iced tea cool slowly at room temperature. Then chill it in the refrigerator. This avoids cloudiness in the tea.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:
Having been in the fur cleaning and storage business for over 30 years, I was shocked to read the letters you sent me from women stating they store their furs in a can or bag and then put them in their deepfreeze. "They are wrong."

The leather becomes very stiff and brittle and it is possible the fur or skin might break if mishandled. Also, the creases in the lining will be almost impossible to press out. Furs should be "thoroughly" cleaned or fumigated before storing to make sure there are no moth eggs present. Moth eggs can do great damage even if placed in a fur vault. Cold "air" simply "retards" the action of the larvae.

Gentle brushing of the fur with the hand or a brush will "not" remove any soil or grease as your readers state.

Women should not consider the cost of cleaning and storing their furs as an expense. "Modern" methods of fur care actually tend to make the hairs water repellent and crush resistant, adding years to the life of fur garments. —Jack Abrams

Dear Gals:
Many of you have written to me that you were storing your furs in deep freezers. This is an answer to your letters from a furrier who has been in the business for over 30 years. Let's take his word for it. Eh? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:
If your cream deodorant dries out before you have finished the jar, just run a little water into the lid of the jar, shake it lightly and screw the lid back on "tightly". Enough moisture remains in the lid of the jar (after shaking the excess water off) to keep the cream from drying up. —C. Booth
It works! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:
My son's school teacher had all the children take a piece of cotton, dip it in vegetable oil and wipe the tops of their screw-top paste and glue jars before even "beginning" to use them. This prevents them from sticking! I now use this method at home. —Mommy

Dear Heloise:
When I clip your columns for my scrapbook, I label them by color.

The ones I think I will use the most, I underline (the subject) with a red pencil. These I can find quickly. The secondary subject matter is marked in blue (those are the ones I think I might use in the next few days of housekeeping.) Sure makes for quick researching, when looking for an answer to an immediate household problem. —Donna Moser

Dear Heloise:
I put our collection of leftover foods in mayonnaise jars. After a day or so when I have dabs of this and dabs of that I set all of these jars in a deep pan.

I then fill the pan with cold water until it covers at least one-half of the jar. I put this pan on the stove burner and when the water begins to boil, turn off the heat and let it sit 15 or 20 minutes. The food is nicely warmed and we have no dirty pans to clean!

This makes a wonderful supper about twice a week for us because everyone gets to choose his favorite food or vegetable for that "certain" meal.

It is rather like a smorgasbord. There is never a complaint about our "leftover" dinners when served like this. —Joan Leonard

Dear Heloise:
I am in agreement with you and all of our friends about that wonderful household product... vinegar.

Just try adding one tablespoon of vinegar to the water in which you boil fresh or frozen okra. I use one tablespoon vinegar for about six tablespoons of okra. This not only eliminates the slickness but adds flavor and keeps the okra fresh and green looking! —Bonnie Arnold

CAPITOL STUFF

By TED LEWIS
WASHINGTON.—What needs to be kept in mind in the Senate investigation of the high financial jinks of Robert G. Baker is that when it is all over no remedial legislation is going to be passed to prevent it from happening again.

The reason is simple. Congress is not going to enact a law requiring its employees to show all their sources of income because such legislation would be ridiculous unless the legislators themselves were covered by it. This is just not in the cards, despite all the big talk about the need of lofty ethical standards.

So about all that can be expected out of the present probe is a partial disclosure of Baker's modus operandi in get-rich-quick schemes while secretary of the Senate Democratic Majority at $19,600 a year.

This will be sufficient, however, for the investigating Rules Committee to come up with a report denouncing such activities by any Senate employee and acclaiming the virtues of ethical behavior by all in the legislative establishment.

This is the sort of sanctimonious guff that almost invariably comes out of an inquiry in which Senate or House is in effect probing itself, as the Senate is in the Baker case.

The stance is to be horrified at such unethical behavior and let it go at that, certainly not to let an investigation develop to the point where there will be a public clamor for a law forcing full financial disclosure from members of Congress and the patronage appointees in their own establishment.

While there are obvious reasons why members of Congress resist that kind of legislation, it would seem that by this time they would see the necessity for it.

DISCLOSURE LAWS COULD HAVE STOPPED THIEVES

If, for example, Baker, during his eight years as Democratic secretary, had been required to report annually all his income sources, he could not have operated in his grand style from his Senate office.

And plenty of other flagrant cases of messy financial deals which have embarrassed Congress in the past would never have occurred.

Keneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms of the House for 15 years, was able to get away until 1947 with shady money operations because there was no check on his finances.

If there had been a "full-financial disclosure" law during World War II Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky.) would have found it difficult to accept $53,000 in bribes for help on a munitions contract.

And it certainly would have made former Reps. Frank W. Boykin (D-Ala.) and Thomas F. Johnson (D-Md.) think more than twice before accepting $250,000 and $25,000 respectively in connection with a land fraud case.

There were court convictions in all those cases, but did Congress, during any one of these scandals, ever do anything in a preventive legislative way? No. And it is generally agreed that no matter what turns up in the present Baker investigation, there will be no big effort either to force lofty ethical standards on members or their staffs.

15 IN CONGRESS HAVE REVEALED HOLDINGS

It is understandable why Congress is reluctant to do this. If a member lets the public know what sort of stock he owns and the amount, he is giving his political opposition back home information which could hurt in a campaign.

For example, if Sen. X turns out to have $100,000 worth of oil stock and also voted to give oil companies a tax break, his opponent for reelection would have an issue worth hammering at.

And if the law also required him to report any substantial gifts or financial transactions in addition to his sources of income, it could be even more politically embarrassing.

On the other hand, at least five Senators and 10 House members who are supporting that kind of ethical standards legislation have dared voluntarily to expose most of their financial holdings. They include New York's two GOP Senators, Kenneth Keating and Jacob Javits.

It is difficult to reach the conclusion that either Senator would have done this if it was a form of political suicide, as various other Congressmen seem to fear.

An even more meticulous accounting is issued annually by Sen. Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio), who is probably correct when he argues he thinks his constituents have a right to the information and that he is more apt to win votes than lose them if he runs for reelection next year.

SEE REFLECTION ON SENATE'S INTEGRITY
Javits, Keating, Young and a small group of other Senators hipped on this financial ethics issue obviously hope that the Baker investigation will convince other members that such legislation is long overdue.

They take the attitude that the Baker case reflects on the integrity of the Senate itself and employees, it can happen again.

They are right, but there won't be any such legislation in the foreseeable future. About the only bill likely to be accelerated by the Baker probe is that sponsored by the Administration providing for salary hikes for Congressmen from their present $22,500 to $35,000.

One argument for this raise is that it would make Senators and Representatives more honest, that they could afford to be more ethical if they could live on what they make.

Breeders preserved the strain of dogs that Norman conquerors brought to England, giving rise to the term "blooded hound." The name bloodhound probably also derives from the dogs' skill in following the blood scent of wounded game.

Funds already have been approved by the legislature.

Warden Wayne K. Patterson said about 100 reformatory inmates in their late teens and early 20s would be sent to the camp and would be put to work chopping trees, clearing trails and building recreational facilities.

The warden said the camp would aid in rehabilitation work among prisoners and also relieve overcrowded conditions at the reformatory.

Patterson said the prisoners would work for the State Game, Fish and Parks Department and would be available for other state and possibly federal agencies.

He estimated it would take a year to complete the four-unit complex at the Delta site. Patterson asked for seven security officers to staff it.

Since 1959, the reformatory has operated temporary camps near Delta and in the Denver area.

Committee members said if the Delta camp proves successful, similar projects for reformatory and prison inmates probably will be established elsewhere. An abandoned Air Force base at La Junta was mentioned as one possible site.

Veteran Retires Thursday After 41-Year Tour

An Air Force career spanning 46 years and two world wars ended Thursday when SM Sgt. Ray McKinsey retired from military service.

With his retirement from duty in the North American Air Defense Command Information Office, one of the few World War I serial numbers still in the active file will also be retired.

Sgt. McKinsey was born at Soldier, Kan., near Topeka, in 1899. He went to Kansas and Oklahoma schools and attended the Holton, Kan. high school.

In 1917, at the age of 18, he went into the Army with the Kansas - Missouri National Guard. He was overseas almost a year, was in several important campaigns, wounded in action and awarded the Purple Heart.

After the war's end, he came back to Kansas and returned to civilian status until 1924, when he rejoined the National Guard. In 1928 he resigned from the National Guard to accept a commission in the Reserve, before moving to Casper, Wyo.

When the Wyoming National Guard was called to active duty in 1940, McKinsey joined the Wyoming State Guard, which assumed the responsibilities of civil defense and security, and served as a major in the organization for the next two years.

In September, 1942, he was recalled to active duty as a first lieutenant. He was assigned to an overseas replacement depot at Kearns, Utah, where he remained, with the exception of 10 months' duty in California, until June, 1946. He left the service as a major.

Two months later he enlisted at Ft. Riley, Kan., as a master sergeant. He had two tours of duty in Alaska and one at Randolph Field, Tex., before coming to Ent Air Force Base here in 1958.

He Has Never Missed One Day of Work

BOSTON (AP) — William F. Dailey is precise about leaving his house at 7:10 a.m. every weekday. He's careful he doesn't miss the 7:25 a.m. commuter train from Bedford, Mass., to Boston.

At 6:30 he begins his day as general plant personnel supervisor for the New England Telephone Co.

Dailey, 64, has less than two months to go to complete a working career of 46 years with a remarkable attendance record.

Not only has he never missed a day of work; he's never even missed an hour.

In 1919, he recalls he started early and walked more than seven miles through a raging blizzard, but he got to work on time.

Dailey credits his wife and three children for his attendance record.

He says his wife keeps him in top health by rejecting any out-of-a-package meals in favor of old-fashioned dinners which she starts in mid-afternoon.

The three children all were born on their father's day off.

Much of his enlisted career has been spent as a food service specialist, but in 1954 he entered the administrative field and has remained there since. He has been in the NORAD Information Office thruout his entire tour at Ent.

Sgt. McKinsey is married to the former Edith A. Hagar. They have one son, Army Lt. Col. Ray A. McKinsey, now at Ft. McPherson, Ga.

Sgt. McKinsey's records show that he has been in military service more than 41 years. He plans to retire to Missouri or Arkansas, where three brothers and a sister live in the Ozark area.

Palmer Concludes Home Grid Campaign With Rugged Trinidad Miners Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Palmer's Terrors return to the stress and strain of South Central League combat tonight in a 7:30 p.m. game with always-dangerous Trinidad at Wasson Stadium.

This evening's struggle, which will be housed in the same arena where the Tribe's dreams of a first SCL championship were hewed apart last weekend, will be the final home appearance for the squad which has already provided the school with its finest record since old Colorado Springs High split in 1959.

A win over the Miners tonight and a follow-up triumph over Central in Pueblo next Saturday would assure the Terrors of a third place finish in this year's standings and keep alive the opportunity of a tie for second. Also, wins in those contests would raise the team's season record to 8-2, one of the more classy won-lost marks around the state. Palmer is currently 6-2, figures which already surpass the 5-5 record of a year ago that ranked as the school's best.

Victory this evening will probably not come easy. Trinidad, in an off year, has won only once in league play and just twice this season in eight starts. Nevertheless, Dutch Nogel's Miners turned in their finest effort of the campaign earlier on this same Wasson Stadium turf, losing only to a final second field goal by the Wasson Thunderbirds.

In addition, the Miners gave Centennial, the other co-leader in the conference, a severe struggle before bowling, 20-12. Last week Trinidad dropped another one touchdown decision, this time by a 20-13 count to East Pueblo.

Nogel's primary problem thruout the fall has been injuries to his already thin forces. Hit hard by graduation last spring, the Miners were still a sound club until the backfield talent began hobbling to the sidelines. Included in the parade were halfback Jim Toupal, one of the SCL's finest athletes; fullback Gary Wright; and halfback Bob Dionisio. All have seen action since their injuries but seldom has Nogel been able to patch together his entire first unit.

Lately the Miners' problems have infected their usually hard-nosed defense as three of the last four teams to face them have scored three touchdowns apiece. Still, there is no assurance that the Tribe will find easy going. Trinidad teams maintain a constant habit of extra effort against Colorado Springs clubs.

Palmer has also suffered heavily from an injury jinx in recent outings and Coach Bill Westbay cannot be assured that he will be at full strength tonight. Still hobbling and doubtful for the Trinidad game is flashy junior, Wardell Patterson, who is one of the regular halfbacks. The Terrors' have also been hampered by injuries to fullback Ray Cool and halfback Jim Glaskin, their "big backs". Both should occupy starting roles tonight as will right-half Alan Snyder and quarterback Walt Hylton. All four are seniors. Up front the Tribe is hoping to improve on last week's performance against rival Wasson. The Thunderbirds moved inside the Terror flanks with alarming frequency and Palmer will have to shore up those spots if the team is to ston the heavy-weight thrusts of Toupal and Wright.

Trinidad is basically a ground team, altho quarterback Mike Bosso has shown flashes of proficiency at the rollout pass. Still the Miners' main forte is generally defense, where their scrambling, hard-socking style has become well-known thruout the state.

Palmer has the attack to move against the southern club.

especially if Hylton has success on rollouts and quick passes which should loosen the tight Trinidad defenses. The Terrors combine speed and power at the other three backfield posts and the Miners will be looking at as proficient an offensive organization as they have seen this fall.

Three Games Highlight Tonight's PPL Slate

Three games are scheduled tonight in the Pikes Peak League as the loop season finish draws near a week from Saturday. Tonight's games include: Widefield at Academy High; Harrison at Manitou Springs; and Fountain travels to Walsenburg for a non-league encounter.

Saturday's agenda calls for the 1963 PPL champions from Cheyenne Mountain to wrap up its final loop game at Florence; and Leadville hosts Salida to round out this weekend's slate.

Last week Eldon Helm's high-flying Indians, who have averaged 53.1 points per game in their last seven consecutive victories, destroyed last year's PPL champions from Air Academy High, 41-13, to cop the league championship. Altho it is very unlikely that the Huskies have the ability to surpass the Tribe on Saturday, should the Florence aggregation pull the biggest upset of the season it would not affect Cheyenne's role as PPL champions.

On the other hand, a victory for the Indians would eliminate Florence from the runner-up slot. At present, both Florence and the pesky Panthers of Harrison share second place in league standings. Terry MacKey's Panthers are almost assured second place based on their next two opponents—Manitou and winless Leadville.

The Harrison crew has developed into the league's most improved squad in loop competition under MacKey's capable leadership. The Panthers go into tonight's game with a 4-1-1 won-loss-tied record losing only to Cheyenne, 35-0, and deadlocking with Florence, 6-6. Meanwhile, the Widefield Academy High game will decide which team will earn a berth in first division standings. The Gladiators have a 3-3 record, while Bill Mondt's defending PPL champions own a 4-2 record losing to Harrison and Cheyenne. A victory for the Widefield squad would deadlock both teams in fourth place. Helm will call on his corps of speedy and powerful runners to pick up Cheyenne's eighth straight league triumph. Leading the Tribe's forward charge will be Helm's frontline triple-threat quarterback, Gary Graham. The 160-pound senior will direct the explosive Indian backfield, composed of fullback Greg Cramblitt, and halfbacks Bob Richardson and Chuck McGee. Cramblitt leads the PPL in individual scoring with 15 touchdowns for 90 points, and the 182-pound ramroad fullback has averaged 100 yards per game rushing. Graham is second in the scoring race with 83 points on eight TDs and 30 PAT conversions.

In addition to his talented backfield, Helm also has a competent line spearheaded by center Jack O'Brien, ends Joe Folk and Al Kemper, and 225-pound tackle Rick Stowell.

Fernandez Ranks As Favorite In TV Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Middleweight contender Florentino Fernandez, seeking his sixth straight knockout, is a 3-1 choice to beat Juan (Rocky) Rivera, the Buenos Aires bomber, tonight in their television fight at Madison Square Garden.

Cuban Fernandez of Miami, Fla., is favored for their nationally televised (ABC) 10-rounder because of his stunning left hook and his remarkable comeback this year.

Last year, the banana-nosed Fernandez suffered three kayoes in his four bouts. Dick Tiger (now world champion) fractured Florentino's nose and stopped him (6). Joey Giambra also stopped him (8) and Rubin (Hurricane) Carter knocked him out (1).

Fernandez's only 1962 victory was a decision over Phil Moyer.

But this year the muscular and mustachioed Cuban refugee scored five consecutive knockouts over Hilario Morales (2), Duilio Nunez (9), Jose Torres (5), Randy Sandy (1) and Joe DeNucci (4).

He now has 30 kayoes among his 36 victories in 42 fights. But Argentina's Rivero — stockier and shorter-armed than Fernandez — has registered 36 knockouts among his 39 victories in 48 bouts. And he never was stopped.

Rocky had only two bouts this year. He lost a decision to contender Jose Gonzalez of Puerto Rico and knocked out Tony Valenti (4).

Iowa State, O-State Clash On Saturday

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Football fans who like to watch a rugged defense should get a real eyeful here Saturday.

Iowa State, which has the Big Eight's best pass defense and third-rated rushing defense, meets Oklahoma State in a conference game. The homecoming activities should bring a crowd of about 21,000.

Oklahoma State has the third best pass defense in the conference but has yielded 295 yards per game in rushing.

Oklahoma State has lost all five games this season and scored single touchdowns in only three of them. The Cowboys lost to Colorado 25-0 and Kansas 41-7, two teams that Iowa State beat in compiling a 3-3 season record.

SOME GOLF BALLS SUFFER DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A Des Moines woman whose husband is a frequent golfer thought of giving him a marker to stamp his name on his golf balls.

He told her he'd rather have some more golf balls. He said that he, like other golfers, really give a beating to golf balls they find bearing other fellows' names.

RMKC Extends Slate Thru Saturday Night

Because of the unexpected snow storm in the Pikes Peak region Thursday morning, officials at the Rocky Mountain Kennel Club postponed the Thursday night racing program, until tonight. This extends the RMKC greyhound racing meet thru Saturday. RMKC had been scheduled to close with tonight's events.

Officials said the entire race program as it had been set up for Thursday would be presented tonight. Greyhounds originally slated to run on Thursday will run on Friday and the Thursday programs will be valid for Friday nights racing.

The Cen-Tex Kennel's Directly, one of the top young greyhounds coming out of the current RMKC meet, will orbit the Peak Course of 1710 feet in company with Inky Black, Tommie Logan, John Kay, Traveler Joe, Perfect Chief, Ash Red and Apache Rex.

In the ninth event, which is also a grade A event, Khep

Olsen to Meet Casey In Upcoming Bout

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Bobo Olsen, the former middleweight champion seeking a comeback, will meet lightweight Hank Casey in his next bout, scheduled for Dec. 9 at the Oakland Auditorium. Olsen defeated Jose Menno of Argentina in his last fight on Oct. 21 while Casey has been idle since the spring of 1962.

hounds and C. W. Wilson's Red Sunder will all be making a try for their fifth win of the season. They will have company in Best Clue, Queen's Slipper, Go Slim and Westy Royal as they orbit the 1710 feet Peak Course.

Daily Double windows will open at 6:30 p.m. with the post time of the first race an hour later at 7:30 p.m. This is the next to the last night of the current meet at RMKC. All other tracks in Colorado have already concluded their meets.

Brandeis University's soccer team is represented by 13 foreign nations.

PALMER WINGMAN—Terry Elliott, fine senior end of the Palmer Terrors, will be in the starting lineup when the Tribe hosts Trinidad at Wasson Stadium tonight. Elliott, who transferred here from East Denver this year, has been one of the Terrors' steady players, even tho he has been hampered by injuries thruout the campaign. Palmer will be attempting to keep alive its chances for a second place finish in the South Central League with a victory tonight.

Hiskey Scores Double Eagle in Almaden Open

By DICK BARNES
SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Babe Hiskey, a rookie professional who was born on a golf course, defied odds of 1.5 million-to-one with a double eagle Thursday and still wasn't happy.

"I thought I might shoot 60," the 24-year-old University of Houston graduate said after his 35-31-66 gave him the co-lead with veteran Dutch Harrison in the $25,000 Almaden Open as today's second round began.

Hiskey, from Pocatello, Idaho was upset about three bogie on his final six holes. But the gallery, virtually none of whom saw the shot, was excited about the 195-yard iron shot Hiskey holed on the par five, 545-yard 13th hole.

The tall, slender youngster, playing in only his 12th pro tournament, played the back nine first at Almaden Golf and Country Club and blasted a 350-yard drive on the dog-leg 13th. His second shot, with a No. 2 iron, bounced once and rolled into the cup.

Hiskey's literal birth to golf came at Burley, Idaho, when he failed to give his mother sufficient notice of his impending arrival.

Harrison, 52, didn't take a single bogie on the 7,045-yard, par 6-36-72 course.

Hiskey and Harrison were two strokes ahead of the fivesome of Jay Hebert, Jim Ferree, Dudley Wysong, Don Whitt and Alex Sutton.

Carson Gridders Renew Play

With all five teams in the Ft. Carson Football League starting anew in the second round of play, coaches are predicting that competition will be even stiffer in the fight for the league title.

"We are a much better team than at the start of the season," 1st Brigade Trojan Coach Joe Karkoska said. "We know that the other teams have improved aso but if we can repeat our victory over 3rd Brigade this Sunday, we should do well in the second half of play."

Third Brigade Chief Coach Bill Belcher feels that his team has just jelled recently, also. "The other teams are improved, but we should better our record in this second round," he said.

"There's only one place for us to go if we change positions, and that is down," Coach Bill Wilson of the undefeated Special Troops Outlaws said. "We expect to win again, but we'll have a much tougher fight this time."

According to Henry Koga, coach of the Support Command Gladiators, the return of injured players hold the key to his squad's hopes.

"Right now, we're pretty well bruised, and we need the return of these players to upset a team as well balanced as the Outlaws," he said. "I hope that most of our wounded will play Saturday, but right now, I do not know what the lineup will be."

"This separation of rounds is really great for the whole league," Coach James Boyle of the Division Artillery Red Raiders said. "I feel that we have a contender, but with two losses in the first round, we would have been pretty well out of it."

Saturday night's game between the Outlaws and Gladiators begins at 7 p.m., while Sunday's game featuring the Chiefs and Trojans starts at 1:30.

CC Hosts Powerful Adams State Still Hoping for Conference Win

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Colorado College, still hoping for a final visit to the winner's circle before departing the Rocky Mountain Conference at the end of the present campaign, hosts conference titan, Adams State, at Washburn Field Saturday afternoon. Kickoff time is set for 2 p.m.

The Tigers, still licking their wounds after a 50-0 trouncing at Gunnison last Saturday, will probably need a strong effort to avoid a repeat of that nightmarish contest with Western State. The Indians from Alamosa are even bigger than the Mountaineers, nearly as deep, and downright angry over the prospect of having their conference championship jerked away from them this fall.

Coach Jerry Carle said earlier in the week that he was pointing his team toward this game with the hope of catching Adams State offside. It is nevertheless true that CC has had the Indians' number in the past. In 1959 an undefeated ASC club came to the Springs as a solid favorite and took a stunning 47-8 drubbing home as a souvenir.

1,000 Colorado Fans Arrive at Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 1,000 Colorado football fans were expected to arrive here Friday for the Air Force-Army game.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad reported that the fans would arrive on a 21-car special train and in nine extra cars added to the Burlington's Denver Zephyr.

And 2,500 Air Force Academy cadets were to make the trip on four special trains for the game Saturday at Soldier Field.

Following that incident three straight powerful Indian teams have managed victory but never easily. CC caused plenty of trouble before bowing 26-16 in 1961, and last year lost 21-20 after being the victim of a disputed extra point call that possibly cost the Springs' team a tie or victory.

Regardless of this past history, the Tigers do not appear to belong on the same field with the 1963 version of Adams State prowess. Physically, CC is certainly no match for the Alamosa team, especially across the line where the Indians will stack their customary display of monsters. The offensive forward wall will average 213 pounds per man, more than a number of top big colleges, and ASC grows even more when the defensive switches are made.

Giants of this alignment are a pair of 250 pounders. Right tackle George Roby carries that poundage into action and he is quite probably the RMC's best all-around lineman. In addition, center Micky Kincheloe also scales 250.

CC, with respectable weight up front, will still be giving away no less than 21 pounds per man at kickoff time Saturday. In the backfield the two teams are relatively even, with the Tigers' packing a scant two pound advantage, mostly due to the fact that the Indians include a 150 pound scatback, Gene Repola, among their starters.

This year's Adams State got off to a miserable start compared to other recent Alamosa editions. The Indians lost four of their first five but the competition was strenuous, including such powers as Fresno State. The last two weeks, among its Colorado brethren, the Indians have been in a vengeful mood, pounding both Fort Lewis and Colorado State College.

Mostly a passing team a year ago, new coach Don McKillip has balanced the Indians' attack this fall, causing new problems for the defense. The leaders are quarterbacks Ron Weiser and Carl Fetter, who share duties at that post. Fetter is a former Cheyenne Mountain star.

With the Indians' huge line, CC will probably be forced into filling the air with footballs once again. Quarterback Cubby Welch and end Lee Muller, the conference's top passing combo, will thus be a feature attraction.

Elsewhere in the backfield Carle will go with halfback

Mike Mestek, slotback Cy Dyer, and fullback Steve "Sudden Death" Sabol. However, the Tigers will be without their second leading rusher and the team's fastest runner. Freshman Ray Jones, who enjoyed that billing, suffered a severe leg injury Tuesday and is out for the season.

TIGER STANDOUT—Stan Lathrop, a 205 pound junior from Napa, Calif., is one of Colorado College's heavier and more experienced linemen. Lathrop will have plenty of use for both the weight and knowledge Saturday afternoon when the Tigers host powerful Adams State in a Rocky Mountain Conference game at Washburn Field. The Indians' starting line will average 213.21 pounds per man heavier than CC's. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

CC Hockey Team Reports For First Practice, Today

A youthful squad with only five lettermen among the 25 candidates will report to new coach Bob Johnson today as Colorado College turned out for the first practice session of the 1963-64 hockey season.

Of the five letter-winners back, two are goalies. Seniors Art Warwick and Pete Doyle will again be expected to share the net-tending duties at CC. The Tigers lost 10 veterans thru graduation.

The biggest job facing the new hockey coach is rebuilding the defense as a result of June graduation. Six players will be trying out for defense positions and the job, according to Johnson, "is really open."

Jeff Sauer and Roger Simon, both juniors from St. Paul, Minn., are returning at center and David Peterson, sophomore from St. Paul, who was returning at center and David Peterson, sophomore from St. Paul, who was outstanding on last year's freshman team, is expected to center a third line.

Only John Simus, senior from Minneapolis, and Wayne McAlpine, senior from Schumacher, Ontario, will be returning at wing for the Tigers. Bob Magie, junior from Duluth, Minn., who played the last half of the season, and Ken Hanson, senior from Minneapolis, who lettered two years ago, will be strong contenders at wing.

Sophomores Bob Otto, Edmond, Alberta, and Glen Blumer, International Falls, Minn., did a fine job as freshmen and should challenge some of the veterans for positions on this year's team.

"This year's team should play exciting and enthusiastic hockey. We lost heavily thru graduation and we are in the process of rebuilding, but we will play every game to win," says Johnson, who came to Colorado College after six years at Minneapolis' Roosevelt High School.

The Tigers will practice daily at the new Colorado College rink from 5 to 7 p.m. The first full scrimmage will be at 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 9.

This year's schedule includes 16 league games in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association with seven of them scheduled at the Broadmoor World Arena, where all home games will be played. League home games will be played. League home games are with Michigan State, Minnesota, Michigan Tech and Denver, altho for the first time CC will play only one home game with DU.

Three new opponents make their appearance on the Tigers' slate with road games against Colgate University, Ohio University and Ohio State University. Ohio State is being coached by former CC pilot Tom Beddecki, who led CC to its last NCAA championship in 1958.

Also included on the schedule is a two-day tournament at Brown University, involving several eastern schools. One of the highlights of the early season will be two game with the U. S. Olympic team at the Broadmoor World Arena, Nov. 26-30.

The season officially starts with the annual Freshmen-Varsity contests, Nov. 22 and 23. CC HOCKEY SCHEDULE

Missouri Will Test Nebraska

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Nebraska's big, talented veterans face tough Missouri Saturday at Columbia in a game that will go a long way toward determining whether Nebraska is ready for a sweep to its first Big Eight football championship since 1940.

It's the top game in a four-game Big Eight schedule, matching two teams with 3-0 conference records and 5-1 season marks. Bob Devaney's Huskers are anxious to prove they have come of age as a championship-level club in the Big Eight.

Last season the Cornhuskers took a 6-0 season record against Missouri, but the Tigers spoiled it 16-7 at Lincoln. This was the first touchdown scored by a Nebraska team against Missouri since Dan Devine started as coach in 1953. The defeat cost Nebraska the runner-up spot. Missouri finished second, losing only to Oklahoma.

Oklahoma's defending conference champions, 2-0 in the Big Eight and 4-1 for all games, are favored to take their 14th straight league victory against Colorado at Norman, Iowa State, 2-2, should get by Oklahoma State, 0-3, at Ames, Kansas, 1-2, is favored over Kansas State, 0-4, in the 61st renewal of their bitter intra-state rivalry.

Nebraska has the experience, brawn and speed to defeat the Tigers, but didn't become a clear favorite until Missouri lost halfback Monroe Phelps for the season with a knee injury last Saturday.

Phelps led Missouri in five categories, was their lone break away threat and the one man they couldn't afford to lose. Devine will try a quickly-revamped offense with Ken Boston in Phelps' spot and Paul Underhill moved back to his old fullback spot.

Dennis Claridge, Nebraska's top run-pass-kick threat, will face Missouri sophomore Gary Lane, a swift runner and good passer, in a duel of quarterbacks. A record Missouri crowd of 50,000 is expected.

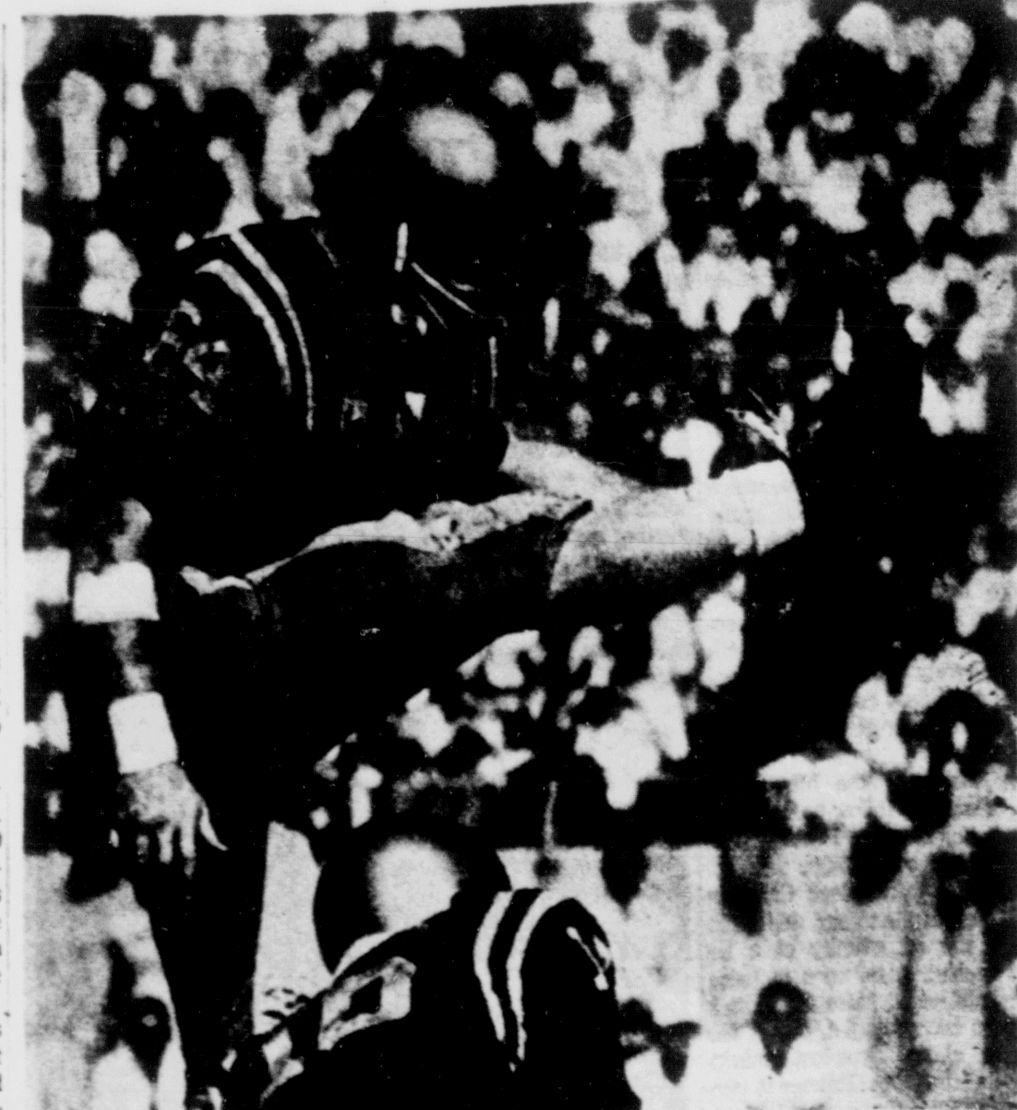

Kansas is expected to have too many guns for K-State, with Gale Sayers, the nation's leading rusher, and Steve Renko at the controls. K-State is the Big Eight's top passing team, with quarterback Larry Corrigan and split end Ralph McFillen forming a potent battery, but the Kansas line is stronger. A homecoming crowd of 30,000 is expected.

Oklahoma is much too deep and strong in the line for Colorado. It will be homecoming for Eddie Crowder, Colorado coach, and assistants Rudy Feldman and Chet Franklin, all former assistants under Bud Wilkinson.

Iowa State's spirit continues high even after a 7-0 heart-breaker to Missouri on a last-quarter interception. The Cyclones led by Tom Vaughn still have a chance for runner-up and have too much defense for the Cowboys.

23rd SEASON

CHICAGO (UPI) — John L. (Paddy) Driscoll is now in his 23rd season as a member of the Chicago Bears' coaching staff.

THREE MORE FOR MARLIN — Fred Marlin, shown here kicking a field goal which started Navy to a 24-12 victory over Pitt last Saturday, is the leading scorer on Navy's offensive-minded football team this season. The stocky guard from Woodbury, N.J. has totaled 38 points and turned his only missed field goal into a touchdown by falling on the free ball in the end zone. (AP Wirephoto)

Service Academies Highlight Collegiate Football Action

By MARTIN LADER
UPI Sports Writer

On the ground ... in the air ... over the water ... you can always count on the United States Armed Forces for a gallant battle. And there'll be no exception this weekend when the three big service academies stage their version of the college football bowl.

There won't be any of that inter-service cooperation the State Department likes to talk about nor will there be any joint expeditions against the enemy. Just a lot of good, rugged football, for which all sides will be amply rewarded.

The occasion is a couple of grudge games pairing the Army against the Air Force in Chicago and Navy against Notre Dame at South Bend. The outcome is as important to these teams as the result of a bowl game is to other schools.

Army and the young Air Force Academy have met only once before and that resulted in a 13-13 tie three years ago. The Navy-Notre Dame series dates back to 1927 and is the longest intersectional rivalry in college football.

The other games to be televised are Mississippi vs. Louisiana State and Southern California vs. Washington.

It'll be hard to convince students at the service academies and Notre Dame, but there'll be a number of other contests around the country Saturday of particular importance.

Texas, ranked No. 1 in the nation and one of only four major schools left with an unblemished record, travels to Dallas with a meeting with Southern Methodist. The Longhorns, despite their national prominence, are still tied with Baylor for the Southwest Conference lead and must keep on winning to earn a return trip to the Cotton Bowl.

The Big Ten also lists several key conference clashes. Second-ranked Illinois, in a three-way tie for the league lead, hosts Purdue, and sixth-ranked Wisconsin is at Michigan State, one of the other leaders. Both Purdue and Wisconsin are tied for fourth place and could possibly move to the top by winning.

There won't be any lack of excitement in the Southeastern Conference where third-ranked Mississippi, seventh-ranked Auburn and 12th-ranked Louisiana State are deadlocked at the top. Mississippi will be

Jets Place Maynard On Waivers List

NEW YORK (UPI) — Flanker back Don Maynard of the New York Jets was placed on waivers Thursday for the purpose of putting him on the injured deferred list.

Maynard, who has a pulled thigh muscle, will be taken off the waiver list should any team claim him for the $100 waiver price. The club's second-leading pass receiver, he is expected to be out for one to two weeks.

Dan Topping has been co-owner of the New York Yankees since 1945.

at Baton Rouge to continue its fierce rivalry with LSU while Auburn hosts tough Florida. Alabama, ranked No. 4 and still in strong contention in the Southeastern, will be at home to Mississippi State.

Nebraska and Missouri, tied for the big eight lead, meet at Columbia, Mo., and defending titlist Oklahoma, ranked eighth, hopes to stay unbeaten in league play by beating Colorado.

The big game on the West Coast matches ninth-ranked Southern California and Washington, two of the leaders in the Big Six and another big one with no conference connotations pairs powerful eastern independents Pittsburgh and 10th ranked Syracuse.

More Automation Seen In World of Photography

By BART KINCH
United Press International
Automation, the push-button world of tomorrow, already is here in the field of photography. The first real breakthrough came in 1956 when Bell & Howell introduced an automatic 16-mm movie camera. In the intervening years the demand for cameras that would relieve the photographer of the need for calculating exposure and making minute camera adjustments before tipping the shutter increased.

As a result, today there are a number of cameras on the market that are partially or completely automatic. Popularly known as electric eye cameras, these compact units utilize a built-in exposure meter that determines the correct exposure.

In most cases the photographer sets the film speed indicator for the particular film he is using, aims the camera at the subject and squeezes the shutter release button.

These cameras for the most part can be depended upon to give prints of acceptable exposure and detail under adequate light conditions.

One of their shortcomings, however, is that under low level light conditions the cameras sometimes produce underexposed negatives. To correct this, many of the electric eye cameras permit the user to switch to manual operation.

This enables the photographer to use the camera under adverse light conditions but defeats the "automatic" purpose. All settings must be determined by the photographer and set on the camera — exactly the same way as with standard cameras.

However, it does increase the scope of the camera and extends its practical application to virtually all lighting conditions. These cameras, 35mm for the most part, usually come equipped with flash synchronizing for both bulb and electronic (strobe) units.

Many of the features usually found in standard 35mm cameras have been incorporated in the electric eye models. Most have a single lever film advance which, in addition to advancing the film, cocks the shutter and moves the film counter up one frame.

The film counter itself is another feature of standard 35mm cameras which has been incorporated in most electric eye still cameras. Loading, unloading and rewinding also are similar if not identical.

electric eye is the absence of a rangefinder in the latter. Most automatic electric eye cameras depend upon "zone focusing." Usually there are three zones: Close-up, intermediate and long distance. The three zones range from approximately 4 feet to infinity.

The viewfinders also have a feature that is unique to electric eye cameras. An indicator, usually red, that informs the photographer there is insufficient light to take a picture under automatic controls.

It is at this point that the photographer must switch from automatic to manual operation, determine the correct exposure and snap the picture. The lenses on the electric eye still cameras vary greatly both in speed and in focal length. They range from about 40mm to 58mm in focal length and from f3.9 to f-8 in speed.

Truck Driver, Housewife Win In Eagles Contest

A Colorado Springs housewife who stopped traffic to aid full cooperation of the City Police Department.

Mrs. Evelyn Blaylock, 506 N. 31st St., was named winner of the first week's contest by the police department.

According to the police, Mrs. Blaylock was driving thru the city last week when she noticed a three-year-old girl trying to cross a busy street.

The woman stopped her car, got out and held traffic back while getting the youngster safely across the thoroughfare.

This week's winner is Robert Linn Klein of Arvada, Colo.

Police said Klein, who was driving a truck and trailer carrying 30,000 gallons of gasoline, phoned them from Monument to inform police he was coming thru. He explained that he was worried about clearing underpasses in the city and asked for help.

Police escorted the man from the south entrance of the Air Force Academy to the Southern city limits.

Police said that underpasses such as the Cache La Poudre walkover, presented a definite hazard to the high truck and trailer. An accident would have been disastrous, police said.

Both Mrs. Blaylock and Klein were presented with safe driving certificates and $25 saving bonds by the local fraternal organization.

Looking At Hollywood

By HEDDA HOPPER
(© 1963 By the Chicago Tribune)

PROTOCOL CHIEF, TITO, MAY VISIT HOLLYWOOD.
HOLLYWOOD. — The Angier Biddle Duke may come here with Tito. It will be the first time Robin (the former Mrs. Jeffrey Lynn) has been in Hollywood since her marriage. As the wife of President Kennedy's chief of protocol, she really gets around. "We made two trips to Africa and Europe in the past three weeks. Left on a Friday for Ethiopia to pick up the emperor, stopped in Rome, Khartoum, Nairobi, and Addis Ababa, and were home in Washington with the emperor on Monday. That was the choicest long week-end I've ever had. At times I feel like sitting on the hillside at Adrian's old ranch house and taking a breather. As life is pretty hectic. However, all the people we meet are fascinating and it's stimulating to see firsthand how they run this show in Washington." Angier is continuing as head of protocol. He is not going to any foreign post, despite the many rumors.

Claude Philippe, of the Americana Hotel in New York, had a brain wave and wired me to see if Kay Gable would come to New York to emcee with Jean Pierre Aumont the April in Paris ball on the 25th. I phoned Kay and after consulting her lawyer, her children's school, her baby's governess, and her friends, she said she'd go. She'll know practically everybody at the ball. Kenneth will do her hair, and Philippe will treat her like a queen.

When I return from what I laughingly call a lecture tour, my Hollywood friends always ask why I knock myself out traveling around the country. Meeting new faces and finding out firsthand what people outside of Hollywood and New York think is an education. Last week I learned a great deal in Rockton, Ill., Jackson, Mich., and Wheeling, W. Va.

In Rockton, 90 miles from Chicago, I discovered an enchanting place for family entertainment, the Wagon Wheel. Some 27 years ago Walt Williamson opened a service station in the bend of the road, decided his customers might like a hamburger while they were gassing up, and built a little stand with nine tables. It was grown into an inn in the rustic manner with 400 rooms, two all-season swimming pools, bowling, ice skating, horses and ponies for riding, tennis, a theater, and a nine-hole golf course that is lighted for night playing. It has everything except gambling. They won't let those fellows in.

The 500 who were persuaded by Mrs. Charles Griffin to come to the lecture asked many questions about our town: Who killed our censor? Why isn't Julie Andrews playing in "My Fair Lady"? Among all the Hollywood stars who is the most real and down to earth? In answer to that I mentioned people like Jimmy Stewart, Roz Russell, and Irene Dunne.

Water Depletion Poses Big Problem in America

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Always, somewhere, man is gasping for water. U.S. conservation experts say its depletion poses a greater problem than the disappearance of other natural resources such as coal and iron.

Yet, water doesn't disappear. It covers three-fourths of our planet and can be forever reused.

Why, then, the shortages that have ruined lands and destroyed civilizations? Uneven distribution is to blame. In the United States, for example, two-thirds of the seven trillion tons of annual rainfall occurs over one-third of the land area.

Man finally is attacking the problem on a worldwide scale. Plans are being laid for a 10-year study of the earth's water resources—an International Hydrological Decade to begin Jan. 1, 1965. Projects initiated before 1975 may continue for a century, planners say.

Scientists of 100 nations will gather and study data on the earth's water cycle—the continuous movement of water from the oceans to storm clouds to the land and back to the oceans.

They'll study its infiltration into the soil and how it moves through the soil—the effects of agriculture, man-built reservoirs, highways and cities on water circulation and quality—how it is lost to the atmosphere through evaporation from the soil and the "breathing" of plants—how snow and ice accumulate and release water.

International teams of hydrologists will study streamflow, levels of natural underground reservoirs and the way water steals topsoil—three billion tons of it in the United States every year.

Water erosion has destroyed an estimated one-fourth of this nation's fertile cropland. Since the 1880s, erosion has dug gullies and pits in the U.S. Southwest. Yet seemingly similar conditions have not had similar results in the southern Soviet Union and elsewhere in the world. Why? Hydrologists hope to find answers during the decade of cooperative study of the earth's waters.

Our water needs are enormous. The average man consumes about one ton of water a year in his food and drink.

Plants need about 1,000 pounds of water to produce one pound of food. Industry and transportation require tremendous amounts.

To meet mushrooming needs, man must increase the availability or utility of the less than three per cent of the world's water that is fresh—and an estimated 80 per cent of that is in ice and snow, mostly in the polar ice caps. He can supplement this by desalting sea water, but the methods are costly.

The constant resource can be magnified by re-use. And man is learning how, even to the point of purifying and reclaiming sewage water.

He is learning how to recharge depleted underground reservoirs, nature's storage regions that are immune to the evaporation of surface reservoirs.

It's Going to Be Warmer in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) —It's going to be warmer in Anchorage this winter.

The U.S. Weather Bureau plans to move its thermometer from the airport to downtown Anchorage, a spokesman said Thursday. Temperatures recorded at the airport generally are several degrees lower than in the city.

Jobless Pay Probers to Get $492 a Month

DENVER (AP)—The four investigators looking into alleged frauds in unemployment compensation payments will be paid $492 a month, Michael A. DiNunzio, Civil Service Commission president, said today.

The lead man in the investigation is James Buckley, former chief investigator for the Jefferson County district attorney. Buckley is already on the state payroll as a liquor inspector.

DiNunzio said that Buckley will be responsible for handing out assignments and receiving reports from the other three investigators. He will report directly to William P. Waggener, a Denver attorney who is supervising the study.

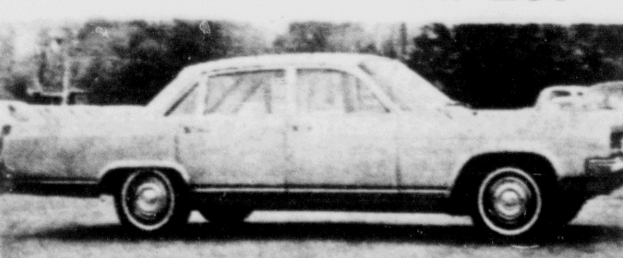

The other three investigators are all new to the state payroll. They are:

Gene D. Renuau, a recent law graduate of the University of Colorado.

Charles D. Lindsley, who assisted with a state investigation into criminal charges against former Adams County Sheriff Robert Roberts.

Thomas McDaniels, a former security agent for the Public Service Co. of Colorado.

Morocco Pulls Back Following Algerian Attack

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—King Hassan II said Algerian forces attacked the Moroccan town of Figuig in mass today and he has ordered his troops to withdraw.

At a news conference at the royal palace, the somber king announced Morocco would not fight back.

He said his government will abide by a pledge made Wednesday in Mali to cease hostilities and seek a negotiated solution to the frontier problem with Algeria. A cease-fire in the frontier war is scheduled to begin at midnight tonight.

The king said there were dead and wounded in the Algerian attack.

Figuig, a town of about 8,000 inhabitants, is several miles inside Moroccan territory in northeastern Morocco. The defined and agreed-upon part of the Moroccan-Algerian frontier ends south of Figuig.

The king said he has informed the U.N. secretary-general, the International Red Cross and the Organization of African Unity about the attack. Bitterly, he stressed that Figuig at no time figured in the dispute over the border.

"It is unthinkable that new fratricidal fighting should take place in an area which has never been contested," he said.

He has ordered the Moroccan garrison at Figuig, consisting of one company, to pull back a kilometer (.6 mile), Hassan said.

He added that Algerian troops controlled the ridges around Figuig, and were pounding the town with artillery and mortars.

Defense Minister Mahjoubi Aghardane said the Algerian attack began with a strong artillery barrage at 5 a.m.

The king described at attack as "a diabolical plan" to shatter the agreements reached Wednesday at Bamako, Mali, in which Algeria and Morocco pledged to seek peace and a compromise in their frontier dispute.

"Morocco does not intend to counter-attack," the king said. "I will maintain the Bamako agreement. Morocco will follow a policy of peace."

Hassan's government broke off diplomatic relations with Cuba because of its aid to Algeria and recalled the Moroccan ambassadors from the United Arab Republic and Syria because of their governments' pro-Algerian stand.

Morocco charged that Cuba had sent freighters with Soviet arms and Cuban personnel to help Algeria in the war. Syria and the U.A.R. were accused of aiding violent anti-Moroccan propaganda by press and radio.

The U.A.R. also was accused of planning to aid Algeria with men and equipment. Under the cease-fire negotiated by Hassan and Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella, both nations' forces are to be withdrawn from a large demilitarized zone. But Algerian and Moroccan officers, meeting with officers from Ethiopia and Mali, still have to negotiate the limits of the demilitarized zone. And neither government has given any indication of a retreat in its territorial claims.

Stay of Execution Granted by Court

DENVER (AP)—The Colorado Supreme Court granted Thursday a stay of execution for Sylvester Lee Garrison, 30, a condemned murderer.

Garrison had been scheduled to die Monday for the April 26, 1958, bludgeoning slaying of a Denver apartment owner during a robbery.

His attorney asked the court to stay execution until it decides on an appeal based on the contention that Garrison had become insane since his 1959 conviction.

Unpatented Mining Claims Said Dangerous

DENVER (AP) — The Bureau of Land Management issued a warning today against buying unpatented mining claims or unclassified public lands as sites for summer homes or mountain cabins.

Lowell M. Puckett, Colorado director for the bureau, said such claims are worthless unless valuable minerals are discovered on the land and certain development work is done.

'Moldy' Gettysburg 'Stuff' Proves Hoard of Money

WASHINGTON (AP)—A high school teacher who had to have scooped up last June is worth $54,200. "I feel sick. My legs are still shaking. Wow."

And then, "I'm waiting for some confirmation." That was George C. Rappaport's response when told by a newsman that the cache of mutilated currency he turned in to the Secret Service in New York last July has a redemption value that the Treasury sets at $54,200.

Rappaport has been waiting years, he says, "and I've driven since then to hear from the government. The Massapequa Park, N.Y., man said that except for his wife Ruth, he has told nobody else about his find. "It would just be my luck to run into something and get into trouble," said Rappaport, 46, a social studies teacher at a Bellmore, N.Y., high school.

Last June 26 the vacationing Rappaports and their two children, Eileen 17, and Jack, 13, once a year from some homes visited the Gettysburg battlefield in Pennsylvania.

They toured the Civil War site, but Rappaport said: "You know how it is on a tour. Things go so fast you can't appreciate everything. So we went back."

Next day Rappaport was walking by the Eternal Light Peace Memorial at the Gettysburg National Military Park. His wife and two children were in their car nearby.

On the ground lay a rotted bundle.

"There was no one around," Rappaport recalls. He picked it up — "I had no idea what was inside" — and placed it in the trunk of the car.

Later, he put it in the cellar of his home.

"I couldn't possibly spend any of it. It didn't look like currency. It was too moldy. "About 10 days later, I didn't know what to do with it, so I reported it to the Secret Service in New York."

He says he was called to Washington by the Secret Service about three weeks ago to tell his story.

W. T. Howell, deputy treasurer of the United States, said the mutilated currency was forwarded to Washington to see how much was redeemable. Howell checked the National Park Service to see if it had any claim under law. He was told it did not.

Howell then notified the Internal Revenue Service since such findings are subject to federal income tax.

That is where the matter stands now, Howell said, with the Revenue Service checking on whether it has a tax claim.

Howell said he could foresee no hitches, that once the Revenue Service is done Rappaport will get his money.

Rappaport knows how he'll spend the money. "I want to send my kids to school. That's enough."

Oldsters Are Still Busy as News Carriers

By The Associated Press

At an age when most of us would be happy just to sit comfortably and read a newspaper, Mrs. Mary Douglas of Brunswick, Md., and Robert W. Dixon of Worcester, Mass., are still delivering them. Mrs. Douglas is 86, Dixon 82, and they may be just about the oldest carriers in the nation.

Dixon has been a "newspaper-boy" 73 years, delivering the Worcester Telegram since the price was two cents and an eight page daily paper was considered "quite a sheet." He is an independent carrier and also handles Worcester's Evening Gazette and Sunday Telegram, as well as the Boston Herald.

Mrs. Douglas, a great-grandmother, delivers 76 copies of the weekly Brunswick Blade - Times over a route of steep hills every Thursday. She walks about 12 miles, beginning at 9 a.m. and handing the last copy to a customer at about 4 p.m.

Why does she do it? She says she began delivering the paper 11 years ago because she liked to meet people. She describes herself as "the grandmother of Brunswick."

Not only is much of her paper route uphill, but most of the homes are built at the top or bottom of steep flights of stone steps. James L. Bryan, editor and publisher of the weekly, says Mrs. Douglas has the most difficult route in town. His other five routes are handled by teen-age boys.

Bad weather seldom bothers Mrs. Douglas who will wear a raincoat and rain hat — but refuses to be hampered by an umbrella. She carries the papers in an elastic-handled shopping bag that dangles to her ankles when she starts out.

Mrs. Douglas describes the weekly tour of friends and neighbors as "a lot of fun."

A Salvation Army worker for 70 years, she leaves the paper route every year between Thanksgiving and Christmas to go to Frederick, Md., where she operates a Salvation Army booth on a street corner. In her absence the Blade - Times is mailed to her subscribers and Mrs. Douglas makes collections when she returns for the first delivery after Christmas.

Dixon handles 180 papers daily Sunday. When he was younger he handled 900 a day.

For the past 38 years he's been using an automobile in his work.

"I've had 27 cars in those years," he says, "and I've driven 30,000 miles a year."

Dixon prides himself on careful handling of newspapers. He tries each Sunday edition and always tries to leave a paper in the most convenient place for a customer. He says he never folded and threw a newspaper in his life.

Collections? Dixon says he has seldom been cheated by a subscriber, even though he collects and business places on his route.

Dixon has an unusual record for someone who has dashed up to thousands of front porches. He's never been bitten by a dog. "I've always liked animals," he says, "and they've always been friendly to me."

Why did he become a carrier? Dixon says a businessman advised him years ago to build up a one-man business with newspapers. He recalls:

"He said, 'you won't make a million . . . but you'll get by . . . and you'll be your own boss.' I took his advice and I've never been sorry."

Dixon's wife, Cora, died seven years ago. He fondly recalls how in 1906 they spent a six-week honeymoon in Jamaica — won by getting new customers for his paper.

"I had won two trips to Jamaica for getting 300 new customers," he says, "and away we went. We had a fine time and might have stayed there longer if it hadn't been for an earthquake. We were in Kingston when the earthquake hit and decided we'd better get back to New England."
